THE OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER OF ROMULUS

Killer's release slammed

Heartbroken Nancy Spears believes "sisters are forever." But Spears told a Metro area television audience recently that the life of her sister, JoAnn Lincoln of Romulus, was snuffed out 15 years ago by her boyfriend and no one in law enforcement seems to care.

"For 14 years her killer roamed free, while we mourned the loss of our sister. We lived in fear for months, as her killer lived a short distance from us," Spears says.

Then two years ago, the Wayne County Prosecutor's office raised our hopes and announced they were arresting JoAnn's killer, who had moved to Virginia, married and started a business, Spears said.

"We thought our grief would finally end," Spears said, following the arrest of her sister's ex-live-in boyfriend Dan Dowling late in 1992. "But in reality it only opened our old wounds and left them bleeding months later as we found out a callous plea agreement had been a ranged and Dowling was allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder and accept a two-year prison sentence from a judge of his choice."

This week (Monday) saw Dowling released from prison, Spears cried out, and once again the family is placed in fear.

"Although he is supposed to be in a halfway house, we have no way of knowing if he will challenge us as we seek to speak before his parole board," Spears said.

"Why is it that the victims are treated like criminals and criminals are treated like victims in this county," the victim's teary-eyed sister asked.

"We realize that Romulus didn't have a police department 15 years ago," Spears argued, "but that didn't preclude the Wayne County Sheriff's Department from finishing the job then, so we don't have to live in fear again today!"

Spears said she is hopeful that her sister's tragedy, along with the scores of others in Wayne County, will finally wake up the public to change the public safety style of helping criminals and ignoring the plight of crime victims.

Newspaper announces new design, features

Michigan Community Newspapers has a new look to start off 1995 in a more positive direction.

We added quite a bit of color to the paper for our readers. We also changed the headings, but we maintained the individual names and styles of the six papers readers have enjoyed for so many years.

The food section will be a regular feature page as well as Suburban Living.

Readers are encouraged to submit any story ideas by sending a note to: Michigan Community Newspapers

School presses positive life

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

A determined effort to establish a more positive climate for students at the Romulus Middle School has been under way since last fall.

The school, which has seen repeated top leadership changes in recent years following the promotion of former Principal Jesse Merriweather to district athletic director, has also undergone multiple discipline style changes.

Last spring it was announced that former high school assistant principal Daniel Hurst and former Partnership with Education director Ed Clark, would become the new management team at the Romulus Middle School.

Even before school started last fall, 70 students went to a two-day summer camp to help foster the new school image, Clark related last week.

A code RED program was declared early in the fall, as Hurst stressed a triple philosophy of respect, equality and dignity styles both on the staff and student level.

Hurst got the staff excited about the new positive concept and convinced Carol Pastrick and Debbie Juriga to lead the School Improvement Process effort.

Education and athletics got a jump start as the school year opened, Clark said, and Romulus Middle School athletes are excelling in various sports.

Clark expects that seventh-grader Chris Garwood, already a six-footer, will prove to be one of the district's top athletes of the '90s.

Hurst also worked with four teaming leaders to get them involved with the RED theme. They include Chris Powers, Debbie Juriga, Karen Linebaugh and Chris Hobson.

Not satisfied with the early success, Hurst has initiated a seventh hour program that mandates that any students that have two "Es" must attend the sessions that include three afternoon sessions to stimu-

Mayor, 4 others hit with major lawsuit by EDS

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The battle over the massive Romulus deep well project escalated to a new level last Friday, as Environmental Disposal Systems (EDS) and a companion firm sued Mayor Beverly McAnally and four other city officials for $100 million.

The four-count civil rights suit filed in Federal Court also lists Council members William Wadsworth, Randolph Gear and Mary Ann Banks as well as city Building Safety Director David Paul as defendants.

The filing last week fulfills a pledge made two weeks ago by EDS President Douglas Wicklund, when he changed attorneys and vowed he would step up EDS' battle with McAnally.

"This is an action that has been pending for several months," Wicklund said, "but we have been holding back, hoping for a settlement with the city. Our lawsuit is well documented and we intend to prevail."

The suit also is seeking reimbursement of $3 million dollars in well costs.

The other plaintiff listed in the suit is Remus Joint Venture (RJV), a Michigan joint venture and the owner of the Class 1 commercial, hazardous, liquid waste injection well project.

The suit states that RJV is the owner of a portion of the property at Wahrman and Northline Roads.

EDS meanwhile is the managing operator of RJV and is the permit holder of the well.

The suit states that had the city informed EDS "it would oppose the project and would require a change of zoning of the property from M-1 to MT-2, EDS would either not have purchased the property or would have made timely application for a zoning change before drilling the well and investing $2 million in the project."

Attorney Lawrence R. Ternan, representing EDS, stressed this suit is filed against the defendants as individuals and not the city itself. The suit was filed, he said, because EDS feels it is being denied due process as it was allowed to drill the well and now has vested rights that are being ignored.

The suit alleges that EDS officials first met McAnally and Paul in July or August 1990.

The suit alleges, "Wicklund stated there was great expense and risk involved in the permitting and drilling process with both the national Environmental Protection Agency and state Department of Natural Resources."

Political act claimed

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The $100 million lawsuit filed by Environmental Disposal Systems charges Mayor Beverly McAnally "only opposed the (deep well) project after supporting it for many months, after a political rival (Mary Collins) threatened to make the well a political issue" against her.

The suit charges "McAnally told Douglas Wicklund (EDS president) to hold off submitting the site plans to the Planning Commission until after the election of November 1993."

The suit contends that McAnally told Wicklund that she issued the tickets against EDS, "so that she would be perceived as beating-up on EDS for political gain and not to worry too much."

McAnally stated Tuesday that she obviously had no rival in the last mayor's race and said she and her co-defendants will "defend ourselves vigorously."

Temporary library closes

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The Romulus Public Library will close its doors at its temporary location at 5 p.m. Saturday and will not re-open at its permanent facilities opposite the Romulus City Hall until 10 a.m. Feb. 27.

Head Librarian Diane Hazen revealed that the actual move of the library books and other materials will take place Feb. 8 and 9, but it will take several weeks to re-file and restack the public library books and total supplies.

Hazen said that library members will be given at least one week grace period after the regular library offices are opened to return books due later than Feb. 4.

Books and other printed materials may be deposited at the library drop off site on Wayne Road after Feb. 13.

Hazen said, even though the library building will not be open for business during that period.

Once reopened on Feb. 27, Hazen said, the library's hours will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursdays and noon to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Hazen said the library staff thanks its members and the general public for their patience and friendship during the temporary location at Mount Pleasant School.

They also expressed excitement about returning to their permanent site and announced they will reveal new library programs in the near future.

It was not known Monday whether the library phone system will return to its old number or not, Hazen said.

A 47-year-old woman resident of a Vinewood Road group home facility was found dead at daybreak on Monday on the south side of Ecorse Road, east of Wayne Road.

Detective Lt. Kenneth

Kraus said a citizen notified police of seeing the body sprawled in the snow about 7:35 a.m. Monday.

Kraus said it first was thought the woman had been the victim of a hit and run accident, but it has since appeared she died of natural causes or hypothermia.

"We are working on the concept the victim was at her Vineland home as late as 5 a.m. Monday," Kraus said. "We are still awaiting results of an autopsy to give us additional clues on the death," he said.

As of Tuesday morning, police were releasing few details on the events surrounding the woman's death.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Little League plans dinner

The Romulus Little League Baseball directors are planning its first annual spaghetti social on Feb. 17 at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Hall Post 9568 on Huron River Drive.

The fund-raising dinner is slated for 4 to 8 p.m. Ticket prices include adults, $4; ages 6-12, $2 and children 5 and under will be served free.

Purse stolen from parked car

An 18-year-old Romulus woman told police her purse was stolen from her car, while she filled the auto's gas tank last Friday.

The victim said she put gas in her car at a station at Inkster and Van Born and then walked to pay for the purchase in the station's office. When she returned she found her purse was missing.

A witness described the thief as a tall black male, about 30 years of age, who drove away in a light blue Chrysler compact car. He was said to be accompanied by a white female.

Pizza bandit escapes with $20

A lone woman employee of the Little Caesar's restaurant on Eureka Road told police a bandit fled from the shop with $20 from the cash register.

The victim said she was alone at 3 p.m. last Thursday when a black male in his 20s wearing an oversized blue winter jacket forced her away from the cash register. He opened the drawer, removed $20 and fled, she told police. No one was injured, police said.

Groundbreaking slated for March

The official groundbreaking for the planned new Romulus Salvation Army Thrift Store, Rehabilitation Center and sorting factory at Van Born and Middlebelt Roads is slated for March 29.

The Salvation Army expects to receive bids for the project on March 7.

The current facilities on Goddard Road are due for razing sometime in 1996 or after to make way for a fourth runway for Detroit Metro Airport.

It is hoped that the construction project will be completed by July 1996.

4 students on dean's list

Four Romulus area students have been named to the Madonna University dean's list. They include Jennifer C. Cortez, a junior, studying child development; Betty E. Gilbert, a senior, taking legal assistant training; Michelle A. Mullins, a junior, marketing major; and Jane E. Wertz, a senior, studying general science.

Gun case bound over

The case of a Romulus man firing a gun into an auto stopped for a traffic signal, narrowly missing a motorist, was bound over to Recorder's Court last Wednesday in the 34th District Court.

Police had charged Rafael Thomas, 19, of Romulus, with firing four shots into a car operated by Darrell Waller, also 19, of Romulus, on Jan. 12, after Waller had stopped for a traffic signal at Fourth Street and Van Born Road.

The shots crashed through the driver's side window of the car and struck the steering wheel, but narrowly missed striking Waller. The victim did get minor cuts on the hands from the splintering glass, police said.

Waller fled from the scene and Thomas was later arrested and charged with assault with intent to murder and felony firearm. He was ordered held in lieu of $25,000 cash bail by 34th District Court Judge Tina Brooks Green.

Driver hurt as truck flips over

A 25-year-old Nebraska truck driver escaped death early Monday morning, when his 18-wheel refrigerated truck veered off Interstate-94 in Romulus and smashed into a small clump of trees, police said.

Romulus Traffic Officer Rick Schwartz reported the truck was traveling eastbound in the center lane on I-94 about 3:40 a.m. Monday, when it suddenly veered to the right after passing another truck.

The refrigerated truck skidded on the snow on the side of the interstate highway and smashed head-on into the trees, tearing open the truck's cab and killing the driver's pet cat.

The driver, a resident of North Platte, Neb., was listed in serious but stable condition with multiple injuries at Annapolis Hospital.

Part of the 42,000 pounds of beef the truck was carrying became contaminated by the crash, Schwartz said, but most of it was saved. The truck's destination was a Detroit meat firm.

The force of the crash also punctured the truck's diesel fuel tanks, spilling 180 gallons of the fuel on the frozen ground. A pollution control team responded to the accident scene and cleaned up the environmental problems. The frozen land at the site helped in the clean-up operations, police said.

Schwartz said the crash is still being investigated.

late their educational process and one weekly class that specializes in working on improving students social and interpersonal skills.

The sessions also have obtained the services of high school age tutors, who may be in the process of becoming teachers, Clark explained.

Hurst also encouraged various department chairs to get involved including Charles Kidwell, social studies; Richard Kruse, band; Lynn Behta, mathematics; Linda Cook, language-arts; Tom Williams, science; Debbie Juriga, special education; Gary Banas, student government and Joel Murphy, technology coordinator.

Hurst feels he wants the entire school body (teachers, parents and students) to be concerned about the school's accreditation process.

He has been excited that even the students have worked to help the Middle School earn a shot at a $150,000 Kellogg school grant for across the board improvements.

Clark said six schools possibly could earn a shot at the grant and Middle School leaders hope Romulus ends up being one of the six.

One of the most positive successes, both Hurst and Clark point to this winter, is the effort to create positive conflict resolution programs.

"Fighting is almost non-existent in the school today," Clark says, as peer mediation is one of the main elements of that success.

Among other team players this year, Hurst said, are seventh grade counselor Al Wilkerson and eighth grade counselor Linda Bradfield.

Are Hurst, Clark, staff and students excited about their early success.

"Heck yes, but we've only just begun," they state almost in unison.

Strip-bond debate continues

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Financial broker Tim Moran appeared at the Romulus City Council Jan. 23 to see if any further questions remained on the strip bond issue raised at the Jan. 17 meeting. At that time Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron asked Moran to explain what strip bonds were in "layman's terms."

Moran said he mailed a detailed explanation to all council members last week and was at this meeting to answer any further questions.

Bergeron was missing from the meeting and thus was unable to follow-up on the strip-bond issue.

But Councilman Ellis Pennington, who missed the earlier meeting, told Treasurer James Napiorkowski that he didn't think it was good business to invest city money for 20 or more years.

"I'd rather give that money back to the taxpayers than invest it that long," Pennington said.

Napiorkowski said later that if such taxpayer money rebates were accorded as Pennington said, it would only amount to about $2 per household.

He re-emphasized that the overall bond market is improving which will be a major plus for the city's investments.

Napiorkowski had said two weeks ago that part of the reason for last year's sudden need for cash was the late mailing of the city tax bills because of the passage of Proposal A last March.

The city treasurer said he feels his role is to get the best investment deal possible for city funds and thus he spends on the average of an hour a day studying and discussing the investments.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry said it should be stressed that while Napiorkowski made some miscalculations, he in no way tried to steal anything from the city.

"I want to give Jim credit for trying, but there were some circumstances beyond his control last year," the councilman said.

Napiorkowski said the headline in the Romulus Roman on June 19 was a little misleading referring to a "squabble over 20-year-bond issue." Most people would have thought it referred to a sale of bonds, rather than the issue of strip-bonds, Napiorkowski said, but other than that coverage of the issue was adequate," he said.

School gun policy supported

By JENNIFER PLACINTO

A state school code, which Wayne-Westland officials have been abiding by before it became mandatory, was approved by the school board last week.

The Michigan Weapons-Free School Zone Act Policy calls for the expulsion of students caught with weapons in school or students involved in arson or rape on school property.

Wayne-Westland officials took this hard line policy with its students during the 1993-94 school year resulting in several expulsions of students caught with weapons. And the policy seems to have worked since school officials have not expelled any students during the 1994-95 school year, according to Trustee Francis Winter.

"I believe the new law will work. We had more expulsions last year than any other year, but this year there have been none," Winter said. "It's a hard message to send, but it had to be done. That policy did for us what no other policy could do."

"I know our tough policy has been a deterrent. Maybe it will make kids think twice about their own actions," Trustee Laurel Raisanen agreed.

Students who have been expelled for weapons, rape or arson are permitted to petition the board for reinstatement after 60 school days for students in grade five or below and after 150 school days for students

Romulus to share $1.9 million grant

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

The cities of Romulus and Taylor will share a $1.9 million state Department of Transportation grant for major improvements on Inkster Road, Community Development Director Jane Downing reported Tuesday.

The road improvement project (2.4 miles long) will turn Inkster Road from the Norfolk and Western railroad crossing to Northline Road into a quality all-weather road, Downing said.

"We are absolutely thrilled with the news of the grant," Downing added, "because it is the second year that we have sought to obtain the funding. The project is being jointly funded by Romulus, Taylor and Wayne County, since it is a county road."

"There are many positive factors we are looking at once this project hopefully is completed next year. The first is obviously making it a much safer roadway, since we have experienced some fatal accidents there in the past and secondly that it will open the area for industrial development," Downing added.

The $3.9 million project will cost $450,000 for Romulus and Taylor, $2 million with the grant and the remainder of the cost being put up by Wayne County.

"We are also proud that Romulus was the prime grant applicant," she said.

Jane Downing

The legislative teamwork that led to the grant announcement was also cited by Downing, as she praised the Lansing work provided by State Rep. Gregory Pitoniak and State Senators Loren Bennett (R-Canton) and Chris Dingell (D-Ecorse).

"This project will benefit all users of Inkster Road, which for too long has been overburdened by heavy traffic and has been in drastic need of repairs and improvements," Pitoniak said.

"The funds will also provide our region with more economic development and job creation through the new W.A. Thomas manufacturing facility and the expansion of Edgewood Tool facility," Pitoniak said. Thomas expects to create 450 new jobs over the next two years and Edgewood Tool has hired 40 new workers through the expansion.

Lawsuit

It continues, "EDS (in 1990) would seek an alternative site if the city told him (Wicklund) that it opposed the well."

The suit alleges, "none of the defendants voiced opposition to the well."

In September 1990, the suit states, Wicklund and other EDS officials first began to mention a possible royalty being paid to the city for well operations.

Two months later, the suit states, EDS selected a parcel of property near the corner of Wahrman and Northline roads in Romulus owned by John Ryznar.

The suit claims McAnally thought the property selection was a good site, because it "was so remote."

It is alleged that Wicklund and Robert Ryan provided McAnally with a tour of the EDS Class 2 injection well facility in Chesterfield Township of Macomb County.

EDS claims McAnally asked for the tour "so that she could see what an injection well looked like." It is alleged McAnally was shown the similarities and differences between the two wells.

The suit continues that on Dec. 19 and Dec. 21, 1990 that Romulus City Attorneys Barry A. Seifman and Meso Hammond provided Paul with two written opinions stating the city was pre-empted by state and federal laws regulating the EDS well.

In early February 1991 the suit states McAnally met with Wicklund and his attorney Frederick K. Hoops and the mayor expressed one of the city's most serious problems was the stench generated from Detroit Metropolitan Airport's use of ethylene glycol to de-ice airplanes.

After Wicklund reportedly said such fluids could be disposed of down the injection well, the suit alleges McAnally called Metro Airport Director Robert Braun to discuss disposal of the airport's ethylene glycol fluids down the EDS well.

state permits and claims that the city raised no objections.

The suit says EDS also applied for and obtained an EPA permit and it was issued effective Oct. 27, 1991. It continues "the city was notified about the prospective permits and had opportunities to appear at the scheduled hearings...but it declined to do so."

The public hearings were then cancelled.

In December 1990 the council adopted a resolution saying it would abide by the findings of the state and federal agencies, where it did not conflict with local laws and regulations.

Then in 1991 the City Council passed a resolution rescinding the 1990 resolution.

In June 1993, the suit alleges, City Attorney Barry Seifman wrote "This matter is completely governed by the EPA and the DNR and Romulus has nothing to do with it." However Seifman refused to put his comments in writing, the suit states.

EDS and contractors then applied for and obtained permits that the city required in connection with the drilling of the well. Two months later the drilling was completed, the suit states.

McAnally confirmed "we have obviously received the suit papers and will vigorously defend ourselves." Banks and Paul stated they have no comment on the suit at this time. Gear and Wadsworth could not be reached for comment.

Unions leadership 'out of touch' officer charges

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

If the legendary labor organizer Joe Hill came back, he'd be in for a double surprise.

First, many UAW members voted Republican in the last election. Second, UAW Local 735 President Keith Kaye is crusading to persuade his brothers in the local and international union to adopt mainstream, conservative values. This means challenging union leadership, which has traditionally supported the Democrats.

"Personally, I think that the Democrats are in for some mighty hard times," he said. "I believe the unions, if they don't make some major adjustments, are in for the same pain -- and it could be fatal."

To dodge the bullet, Kaye advocates remaking the unions and the Democrats.

"The Democratic party has to learn that American people do not want special treatment for special interests....They understand that a large segment of people are disadvantaged because of welfare policies associated with unions and the Democrats, and in the Nov. 8 election we're seeing a monster backlash against us. The public perceives that Clinton and the unions are together on unpopular AIDS and affirmative action policies."

Thus lumped, Kaye believes that the public will support Gov. John Engler if the governor chooses to make Michigan a Right-to-Work state, starting with the public sector unions.

"Do you think John Q. Public is happy with public servants and with teachers while one-out-of-three Michigan children graduating from high school cannot read or write past third grade level? Do you think John Q. Public is going to tell the governor, 'Hands off, they're doing a good job and we're satisfied with the fruits of their labor?' You can bet your bippy John Q. has already empowered the governor to do as he feels necessary with those groups."

The problem with top level union leadership, in Kaye's opinion, is that instead of lining up with the mainstream public -- and with the UAW rank-and-file -- in favor of healthy schools and against the special interests, "our leaders are saying the problem is with the voters! That the voters don't understand!"

At the same time that the public is turning on unions, Kaye believes that corporations like General Motors "are good at showing illusions to the public" making it easy for Congress to allow the conglomerates to transfer manufacturing jobs abroad through treaties like NAFTA and GATT."

Though Kaye urges members not "to stand by and let it happen," he hasn't revealed his strategy to change the international's policy. However, he is taking a stand against General Motors at the Willow Run Power Train, where 5,500 Local 735 members make hydromatic transmissions for many GM cars and trucks. According to Kaye, GM has let go 8,800 workers from the plant, and intends to wiggle out of the current contract by letting more go.

"In the national agreement, we have agreed to jointly figure out a better way of doing business," he said.

Redeployed workers are not supposed to be moved to the assembly line and terminated when car orders drop. But Kaye fears that "just as quick as we have a downturn in the economy, GM will tie those workers to volume and reduce their numbers."

Last week, Kaye met at the plant with union and management representatives and argued that GM must keep the workers employed. But GM disagreed, causing the union to consider taking action if the contract is violated, Kaye said.

Last week, GM settled similar issues, including staffing, overtime and outsourcing -- at its AC Delco plant in Flint, after workers struck. The resulting agreement not only saved jobs but calls for the automaker to hire 663 additional workers.

Over the last 12 months, GM has been hit with six strikes. Kaye may be joining, not starting, a trend.

County commissioner named to airport, road committee

Recently elected Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson has been named to the powerful Roads, Airports and Public Services committee that oversees Metro Airport and Willow Run Airport.

As a member of the committee, Patterson will help determine all matters relating to water, sewers, waste disposal, parks and recreation, railroads and rapid transport, all building needs, space requirements, capital improvements, disposal of surplus property and referrals from the Office of Register of Deeds.

At Metro Airport alone, the committee oversees the ongoing master improvement program that by itself is expected to involve contracts with $1 billion during the next few years, as well as thousands of acres of real estate exchanges and the creation of thousands of jobs providing an economic boost throughout southeast Michigan.

"I welcome the challenge, although the responsibility is humbling," Patterson said, upon being informed of the appointment. "Metro Airport is an international facility ranked among the top airports in the world and I promise the right decisions to keep it prosperous and competitive."

Metro Airport ranks 10th in the world in annual number of airport takeoffs and landings and 16th in the world in number of passengers handled annually.

Metro recently also passed Minneapolis-St. Paul and Boston airports last year to assume its 10th position in the world.

Willow Run is also ranked among the world's top 20 airports exclusively serving general aviation and cargo flights.

Simple solution to halt drug problem

As we made preparations to launch a series about the effects of drugs on our neighborhoods and our residents, we interviewed a former federal narcotics agent in the hopes of receiving some new insights to the drug problem.

We reasoned that as a "former" federal agent, his comments would be more candid than those offered by current employees. He would have no fear of criticism or reprisals if any sharp criticism of the unsuccessful war on drugs were reviewed by superiors. In addition, we believed that more than a decade of experience would provide credibility to whatever he said.

Surprisingly, he didn't suggest that the federal government needs more money to wage a successful war on drugs, and he didn't call for more agents to fight the battle.

Yes, he would have liked to have waged a full-scale war on drugs, but, in his opinion, there never has been - and may never be - anything more than skirmishes. The reason is that our federal government has never developed a long-range drug strategy and followed through to implement it.

When we prodded him to provide an answer to the drug problem, he gave us a simple one - one that has been offered many times before by community leaders, youth workers, religious leaders and average citizens.

He suggested that the weapons we need to fight drugs are personal responsibility and family values.

Not multi-billion dollar programs to equip an army of drug fighters or multi-billions to build more prisons to house narcotics offenders, but simple common sense - make individuals aware of their personal responsibility for the decisions that influence their lives, and encourage old-fashioned family values.

We've all heard this before, but coming from an individual who was on the front lines in previous battles against drugs, somehow the simple solution seems much wiser than we had previously thought.

Victory won over 'political correctness'

When I visited the Yankee Air Force (YAF) Museum last month, I quickly learned not to mention the Enola Gay exhibit, which the Smithsonian had scheduled for the spring, to the retired airmen who were restoring a World War II vintage plane.

Truth or Dare
Ivan Helfman

Mention of the exhibit, which planned to describe the GI's fight against Japan as "a war of vengeance" and to describe Japanese aggression as "a war to defend their unique culture against Western imperialism," set the airmen's blood boiling.

Like most airmen, the YAF volunteers had served in the military and found such blatant anti-Americanism bitterly distasteful.

Working at a museum that preserves WW-II planes, uniforms, artifacts and history, their minds must have hoggled at the politically correct distortions concocted by Smithsonian curators.

Fortunately, word of the exhibit spread, causing the Smithsonian's donations to dry up, and, last week, the museum announced it may cancel the exhibit. If so, the nation will be spared the agonies of its premium air and space museum justifying the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor as a defensive action and spared the bad mouthing of President Harry Truman for ordering atomic bombs to be dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Apparently it was not politically correct to want to save the lives of thousands of American soldiers and marines who had barely managed to survive island hopping combat in the Pacific or Hitler's blitzkrieg in Europe. Had Truman been more "PC," then perhaps the American troops could have been trained in multicultural sensitivity, like Western Wayne police and schoolchildren, and subdued the enemy with non-violent conflict resolution techniques.

The likely cancellation of the exhibit would be a rare victory for truth, honesty and the American way -- as great a victory as the 99-1 rejection by the U.S. Senate of the national educational Goals 2000 American and world history curriculums proposed for public schools by a blue ribbon committee of mainstream educators.

The proposed curriculums were as foolishly PC and anti-American as the Enola Gay exhibit. Rather than illuminate

Mother protests court rulings

To the editor:
My daughter went to the chili cook-off in Wayne last year. While there she threw beer in an ex-boyfriend's face. He, in turn, threw some back. She was put in jail, he wasn't.

She went to court in front of Judge Archbold, was put on probation for one year, plus she has to attend Alcoholics Anonymous meetings and was fined $150.

She did not go to AA meetings as winter set in and she had no heat in her car. So she had to go back to court on Jan. 25, 1995 and was sent to jail for five days. What is wrong with this judge? My daughter has two kids plus a grandchild to care for, no job and no income. She has never been in trouble before, not even a traffic ticket. Why wasn't the other party brought in also.

There are people that have done a lot worse and are walking the street. This judge needs to be removed from her duties. Also the lawyers that are there to help people could not be very good or things like this would not happen. I am sure the jails are empty enough for some one that should not be there. And I guess the taxpayers like things like this also. I think it is very unfair and I will in time see what can be done myself. Maybe a television station needs to be called. If my daughter had been in trouble before, I could see this, but she never was.

When you don't have money for good lawyers this is what happens. So money buys you anything, if you have it.

Writer disagrees with Jimmie

To the editor:
I totally disagree with Jimmie Raspberry who thinks we should give up the fight against Environmental Disposal Services (EDS). The following letter contains more opinions I have.

EDS came into our city under guise and/or disguise. EDS has, all along, attempted to "trump" Mayor McAnally and our city officials using the EPA and DNR. EDS has totally disregarded Rescinding Resolution 91-389 adopted by our City Council 8-28-91.

EDS is threatening to bankrupt our city if we don't let them use the "test?" well they drilled in July-August '93, a whole two years after the aforementioned rescinding resolution became effective.

EDS intends to inject hazardous Canadian waste into the still-empty Romulus well-space, and they have a Canadian partner in this "venture."

Being a Romulus resident, in May of 1994, I personally visited the well site on Wahrman Rd. for the purpose of wanting to decide about the well issue myself.

At a RECAP meeting at Mary Collins' house that same night, I found out about the 1991 rescinding resolution Wicklund failed to tell me about. I also found out from Mary Collins herself, that she later sent EDS a $25 check to cover her dinner because she was expecting EDS to be a "curbside recycling company," not a hazardous/nonhazardous waste disposal company.

I would often become personally upset whenever I read pro-well articles in the newspapers, noting that this rescinding resolution was never mentioned in the chronology of events regarding the well. After my urging, two newspapers published corrections to include this timely resolution, and the Michigan Chronicle published my letter to the Editor (June 22-28, 1994).

I came to understand that Mayor McAnally was between a rock and a hard place. On the one hand, she had EDS telling her that they didn't need her approval; they only needed approval of the EPA and DNR. On the other hand, she had a voting City Council member promoting his father-in-law's property; and she could not very well be hostile to a company seeking to do business in our city, willing to contribute a half a million dollars a year to our city! Sound-Off

Opinions expressed on call-in line

Callers to the Sound-Off 729-4006 line expressed their concerns and criticisms about a diverse number of subjects this week - overtime, the need for an ice arena and gang apparel.

Individuals who wish to express their opinions on any topic of general interest may call the Sound-Off number between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. daily. Callers need not identify themselves, but are asked to refrain from abusive or profane language and to speak clearly.

Excuse me - I thought that the elected officials were supposed to be the voice of the people who have elected them. I participated in the 1994 and 1995 Canton surveys. Sixty percent of the people say that we should have an ice arena. But thanks to the department of recreation, there is no ice arena. Why do we even have a survey if our elected officials are going to ignore it? They go ahead and do what they want anyway. There are enough hockey kids, families, and figure skaters in and around Canton that there is no way that an ice arena, instead of the Summit, should have been built. It would have been needed and very profitable.

I think it is futile for assistant principals to ban so-called gang clothing and then allow students to attend schools with tatoos and body piercing. At least the outfits hide the body mutilations.

It makes no sense for Ford to bury its line laborers with so much overtime that only a 25 hour day would be worse, and then to close down the plant. Fickle? Greedy? - or what?

Canton experiences increase in domestic violence incidents

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Staff Writer

Domestic Violence is a growing problem as evidenced by a 50 percent increase in incidents in Canton Township.

- Statistics reveal that:
- 30 percent of female homicide victims are killed by their husbands or boyfriends.
 - One woman is battered in this country every 15 seconds, according to FBI estimates.
 - More women are injured in episodes of domestic violence than in incidents of rape, mugging and car accidents combined.
 - 55 percent of battering husbands abuse their children as well.

On the Public Docket at the 35th District Court in Plymouth where cases are heard from Canton Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township, the week of Jan. 20, 1995 listed 16 separate domestic violence cases.

District Judge John E. MacDonald said, "Domestic violence is up, at least 50 percent more than last year. Every year they are continuing to escalate. Police are not mediating, but having people sign the complaints. When we talk about domestic violence, it's boy friend, girl friend, live-in, father to children and children to children. There are some new laws in Michigan. Stalking is increased as well. It does lead one to another sometimes."

"I don't think Canton is unique. I think it's happening all over," Judge MacDonald said.

"In our society there are many times more stress and strain, both in work and in the home. Alcohol and drugs contribute to it. In most cases, alcohol and drugs are a part of it."

"It's incredible what people do to themselves. Man's inhumanity to man. We are desensitized by television. You hear the lead stories, 'if it bleeds, it leads.' Not a night goes by without some gross act by another person. People don't get upset by it."

Once convicted of the offense, they can be sent to the Probation Department where there are several assaultive behavior and domestic violence programs to make people recognize that beating each other up is not the answer. Also, there are programs to deal with alcohol abuse.

Conditional bonds may be obtained to separate the spouses and allow no contact. Some violate these programs and are then sent to jail.

Although domestic violence is not a new thing, MacDonald believes the O.J. Simpson case and the "burning bed" incident have brought increased focus upon this issue.

"Canton is a safe area. Not a high crime area. Most residents don't endanger other people," the judge said.

Judges study dynamics of violence

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Staff Writer

To gain insights into the problem of domestic violence, a seminar, "The Dynamics of Domestic Violence," was conducted for judges as part of the 1991 Regional Seminars.

Victims of domestic violence can appear uncooperative and in conflict about their feelings toward their assailants. They may ask judges to remove "no contact" orders put in place for their protection. They may ask judges to not jail the assailant. They may even ask judges to drop charges altogether, according to co-authors Barbara Craft and Janet Findlater, who prepared materials for the seminar.

Assailants can present themselves well, and convincingly argue that the offense did not happen, or was blown out of proportion. They may admit the assault occurred, but insist it only happened

Domestic violence is not an isolated physical assault. Over time, the violence increases in incidence and severity.

- Co-authors Barbara Craft & Janet Findlater

once and will not happen again. They may say their actions were the result of drug or alcohol abuse for which they are now receiving treatment.

"Domestic violence is a pattern of violent and coercive behavior engaged in by the assailant to control the victim. Domestic violence is not an isolated physical assault. Verbal attacks, emotional abuse, threats and intimidation are used together with physical assault to enhance the assailant's control over the victim. Over time, the violence increases in incidence and severity," noted the co-authors.

Psychologists tell us that victims of domestic violence have a great deal in common with prisoners of war and hostages. Their behavior can ultimately be controlled by a combination of physical and psychological attacks. The end result is a relationship in which control and domination are exerted by one person over another person.

Studies show that 80 percent of men who commit domestic violence grew up in violent homes. Clusters of behavior frequently found in assailants include extreme jealousy, minimization of his violent acts, denial, rationalization, excessive control of his partner and children, blaming others for his feelings and manipulation, according to the seminar presenters.

Winners to be announced

During the past week, the editorial board of Michigan Community Newspapers has studied the nominations for Person of the Year and a decision has been reached on the winner, two runners-up and several honorable mentions.

Among the top nominees were a Wayne church secretary, an Inkster volunteer, a Westland business owner and community fund raiser, a Girl Scout troop leader, an Inkster community leader, a Wayne church volunteer, a Westland community worker, an Inkster youth leader, a Belleville community activist and a Westland community volunteer.

Next week, we will honor the Person of the Year and the two runners-up and acknowledge the recipients of the honorable mentions.

Trustee named to committee

Denise Wellons-Glover, Wayne County Community College Board of Trustees member, was recently elected to chair the national Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT) Minority Affairs Committee.

The committee comprised of regional chairmen elected Wellons-Glover to complete the vacated office of Diane Morales who resigned her post.

As chairwoman of the ACCT Minority Affairs Committee, Wellons-Glover becomes a board of director of the national association. She also chairs the ACCT Central Region Committee.

above two paragraphs can, in no way, be construed as "welcoming EDS with open arms," as Raspberry and EDS claim.

I attended all the ZBA hearings which were attended by "not just a few noisy protesters" as Raspberry claims there are, but by hundreds of noisy protesters. RECAP has collected 6,000 "noisy" signatures from Romulus residents - all against the well!

To My Fellow Romulus Citizens: we have a Democracy here, even in this sleepy little city of Romulus. The people have spoken, and what they have said is this, "Recap the EDS hazardous waste Jeep injection well."

It's true that there is a "hole" in the ground, but there has been nothing injected into it yet. Let's try to keep it that way! Please show up for the next two Zoning Board of Appeals hearings and find out for yourself just who is really for and against this EDS Hazardous Waste Well.

the course of civilization, the proposed world history curriculum obsessed on past sexual discrimination as if history had no other themes. The American history curriculum ignored Thomas Jefferson and Robert E. Lee for the likes of such historical lightweights as conservative columnist Pat Buchanan and fifties demagogue Sen. Joe "Tailgunner" McCarthy.

Possibly it's too early to conclude that the PC trend has been reversed, but I would like to think that if such a lame body as the U.S. Senate can finally stand up and fight the de-based educational standards put forth by Goals 2000, and if the American public can rise against the Smithsonian's dubious history, then Western Wayne parents can organize and oppose the continuance of PC curriculums in area public schools. Though well intentioned, years of PC, multiculturalism and dumbed-down curriculums are polarizing society by focusing on ethnic and racial differences, rather than celebrating commonalities, and are fueling anti-Americanism by teaching children a distorted history.

Obviously fearing a parental revolt, the Michigan Education Association has anteed up over $8 million to wage a three-year public relations campaign. Considering how much deception that money can buy, parents should be wary. But the stakes are so high that parents must build on their common interest in raising children who are well educated, bullish on America, and civic spirited enough to put aside differences.

Stamp of disapproval

To the editor:

After writing the letter that I am sending to you, I discovered that I didn't have enough postage to send it. But, lucky for me, I had enough time to go to the post office to purchase some three cent stamps.

I found the parking lot to be unusually full and the line even longer. About 40 people ahead of me and all I wanted was just one lousy three cent stamp.

I didn't have the courage to ask anybody else if they were here for the same thing. After just five minutes in line, I had 10 people behind me. I was at the point where I wasn't going to get out of line to ask a postal worker if there was a special line for stamp purchasing and lose my spot.

So, I entertained myself by looking at the faces of the people as they entered the building. Some pretty funny expressions. And for a three cent stamp?

Not on your best hair day. After passing the point where I couldn't see any more faces, I started to take my being there a little more seriously.

I came to a conclusion that I was going to buy a book of three cents stamps to go with the book of 29 cent stamps I had at home. They looked so lonely at the corner of my envelopes and could sure use some company.

So now I'm standing in this long line wanting a book of three cent stamps so I can stick to one of my New Year's resolutions and write to you.

When I got to the front of the line I was relieved that I didn't have to hear the woman behind me talking about how her grandchildren unrolled all of her toilet paper and tried to flush a bar of soap down the toilet last Christmas - again.

I told the kind teller that I wanted a book of three cent stamps to keep my 29 cent stamps from revolting. She said that they don't have books but sheets of three cents stamps.

What? No books? Bummer. Just then, I overheard the old woman telling her story for the 19th time and I settled for the sheet.

Lucky for you! Now, my 29 cent stamps are happy and my cat is wondering what I am keeping away from him.

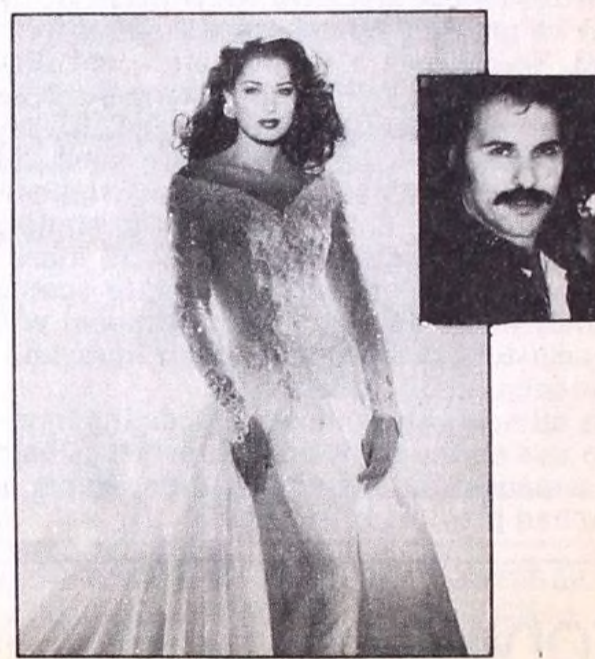

Thank you for your time. I will write again as soon as I have the courage.

Step forward made on information highway

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

Lured by word-of-mouth promotion, a group of about 75 Western Wayne County computer devotees recently came to the Westland Friendship Center to see a vision of the electronic future as depicted by the Greater Detroit Free-Net (GDFN).

"This was our first meeting in the area and we had a warm response from the community, including about a half dozen donations and a decent number of volunteers," said Paul Raine, GDFN president. "Hopefully we'll return and more people will step forward."

The GDFN, which has been an on-line bulletin board since 1994, is a local stop on the information super highway. It's usable by anyone in Michigan with access to a computer and modem and telephone line. Though in its infancy, it already offers free electronic mail, a local discussion area, church newsletters, local special interest groups, links to most area colleges, an on-line entertainment and cultural events guide, a free connection to over 4,000 news groups, and government information -- such as the EPA's Rouge River project that is effecting all Western Wayne communities, said Raine. This is just a beginning.

The all-volunteer organization hopes to lure local businesses, libraries, school boards, and governments to come aboard and electronically publish information for the public. It is also seeking an electronic newspaper and considering adding the World Wide Web, a linkage of databases featuring written and verbal information, pictures, video, animation, and music. For example, the White House page offers viewers a picture of the First Family as well as a "meow" from Socks, the family's cat.

Realtors or homeowner could dial in and find a parcel's ID number, its dimensions and tax breakdowns.

- Glenn Anderson

Already the Canton public library catalog is available.

Westland City Councilman Glenn Anderson, who arranged the Friendship Center meeting, said he's trying to persuade Mayor Robert Thomas and personnel director Kent Herbert to put a city database on-line.

"I can see providing data to our citizens, such as property tax information," he said. "Realtors or homeowner could dial in and find a parcel's ID number, its dimensions and tax breakdowns."

"A citizen or businesses could research community statistics and census information.

The city could offer a promotional piece, which might benefit the city's economy. The city has to think of itself as business, and on-line promotion would give us an edge."

At the meeting, Bev Clark, GDFN publicity director, showed a 15-minute video about freenets, featuring the fully developed Peoria, Ill., freenet. The Peoria freenet provides reams of local information posted by everyone from individual hackers to school and government bureaucrats for the benefit of local residents and visitors. Accessible by the internet, the freenet provides the same information to visitors and out-of-town investors looking to do business.

Currently access to GDFN is available through the internet and MichNet. Western Wayne residents may call (313)722-1500 and (313)467-1632. To connect, type in "vt100" at the terminal prompt; "detroit.freenet.org" at the host prompt; and "visitor" at the login prompt.

Patterson named to airport committee

Among his new duties, Wayne County Commission Bruce Patterson has been appointed a member of the committee that oversees Metro Airport, Willow Run Airport and 75 percent of the billions of dollars worth of goods and services purchased by the county annually.

As a member of the Committee on Road, Airports and Public Services, Patterson helps determine all matters relating to water, sewers, waste disposal, parks and recreation, railroads and rapid transport. He will also oversee all building needs, space requirements, capital improvements, disposal of surplus property and referrals from the Office of Register of Deeds.

budget, which approaches $2 billion.

At Metro Airport alone, the committee oversees the ongoing master improvement program that by itself is expected to involve contracts worth $1 billion during the next few years, as well as thousands of acres of real estate exchange and the creation of thousands of jobs providing an economic boost throughout southeast Michigan.

"I am honored by this confidence placed in me and I welcome the challenge, although the responsibility is humbling," said Patterson. "Metro Airport is an international facility, ranked among the top airports in the world, and I promise the right decision to keep it prosperous and competitive.

Metro Airport ranks 16th in the world in number of passenger handled annually.

Not only is Metro Airport also the number one hub of Northwest Airlines, its passenger traffic has more than doubled in the past 10 years. Willow Run is ranked among the world's top 20 airports exclusively serving general aviation and cargo flights.

In addition, Patterson is vice chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, vice chairman of the Subcommittee on Veterans Services and member of the Committee on Drains and Committee on Economic Development.

The cold you feel right now is how thousands of families feel 24 hours a day.

This year, thousands of men, women and children will be cold due to a financial hardship. For them, the thought of winter's cold only brings doubt and fear. Whether they are unexpectedly unemployed or the working poor, they will endure the chill of winter without the protection of a warm home. You can help prevent this by contributing to The Heat And Warmth (THAW) Fund.

THAW is a non-profit organization which helps struggling families in 11 Southeastern Michigan counties keep their heat on. It is the last resort for families who have exhausted all other possible resources. Since 1986, THAW has assisted over 15,000 families, more than half with children. Yet, THAW is not considered a handout, but a helping hand, for less than 10% of the recipients are repeat cases.

Once again, Detroit Edison is supporting THAW's efforts. Every dollar you donate will be matched by Detroit Edison and will go directly to help those in need. So, as the nights grow longer, please remember the families who grow colder.

Donations may be made using a VISA or MasterCard by calling 1-800-866-THAW (or 8429). Or send contributions to: The Heat And Warmth Fund, PO Box 1000, Plymouth, MI 48170.

Michigan Community Newspapers (Belleville Enterprise, Canton Eagle, Inkster Ledger-Star, Romulus Roman, Wayne Eagle and Westland Eagle) in conjunction with area car dealers announces the $10,000 CAR GIVEAWAY contest.

That's Right! Readers of Michigan Community Newspapers will have the opportunity to win $10,000* (must be utilized towards the purchase or lease of a new or used vehicle from participating auto dealers) in this unique contest that begins January 5 and runs through March 15.

Here's How it Works: Simply cut out the entry blanks below and deposit them in ballot boxes at the respective dealerships. Readers can enter once a week at each of the dealerships, for the ten weeks of the contest. Those that enter more than once a week will be disqualified.

Each week a finalist will be chosen from the entries that are deposited. The grand prize winner will be chosen from the 10 finalists in late March.

So don't be shy. Let's start the new year out right. Start snipping the entry blanks each and every week. You have just as good an opportunity as the next reader to bring home a new car.

This contest requires no purchase. All you need to do is fill out the entry blanks provided and visit your friendly car dealers. The weather may be cold and snowy but the deals are hot and the cars are fun.

*MCN will make your first $10,000 in payments on a vehicle of your choice (purchase or lease) from any of the participating dealers.

Cooling off period School officials cancel Robichaud-Inkster basketball game

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

For the first time in more than three decades a varsity basketball game between arch-rivals Dearborn Heights Robichaud and Inkster High School has been canceled.

Westwood District School officials informed Inkster High Athletic Director George Thompson Jr. last week that the scheduled game between the two schools would not be played because "a cooling-off period was needed."

During their first encounter earlier this season, gangs disrupted the game and law enforcement personnel had to clear the gym at Robichaud. No one was reported seriously hurt, however, at least one spectator reportedly was taken to the hospital.

Inkster went on to win the game.

If Robichaud doesn't show up to play Friday night at Inkster, the game will officially go down in the record books as a forfeit by the Dearborn Heights team and the victory will go to Inkster.

Thompson said that he is "very disappointed" that the game will not be staged. He said that the cancellation will send a wrong message to the two communities.

"I don't care what they say over there, but I think we are sitting on a potential time bomb. And I don't think the game is worth a life. We are risking lives if we play that game. It has gotten out of hand and there have been problems."

- Robichaud head coach Ron Tarrant

"We asked to meet with Westwood officials to discuss the situation, and we thought we had an agreement to meet," Thompson said. "However, this meeting did not materialize. 'Instead we got a letter from

Dr. Bradford (Dr. Equilla Bradford, superintendent of Westwood school) which basically said that they believe a cooling off period was needed and that they would not be coming over here even if we decided to play without the spectators."

Thompson said that he believed there was adequate police protection at Inkster High School if or when any disturbance occurred the school could handle any situation.

"We have never had any problems here and we have played such teams as Romulus, Highland Park and Saginaw Buena Vista," Thompson continued. "The students are the losers if this game isn't played."

Ron Tarrant, head basketball coach at Robichaud, said that it would be in the best interests of both schools to cancel the game.

"I don't care what they say over there, but I think we are sitting on a potential time bomb," Tarrant said. "And I don't think the game is worth a life. We are risking lives if we play that game. It has gotten out of hand and there have been problems."

Tarrant stressed that the problems were not caused by the players of the teams but by adults who come out of the stands and begin to fight.

"The gym is always packed when our two teams meet. And there are elements that attend these games who are always looking for trouble. Until we can create a safe environment, I feel that it is best not to play this game."

Vikings stay in striking range

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Despite a close call at Ecorse last Tuesday and a victory over Oak Park on Friday, defending Suburban Athletic Conference hoops champ, Inkster, remained in striking range of league leader, Willow Run.

Inkster is seeking a rare SAC title repeat.

In a league noted for its basketball, it is rare for a team to win two successive titles.

Coach Monte Dennard's Vikings trail Willow Run in the standings by a game as the second-round of conference competition got underway last week. The two title hopefuls are scheduled for a rematch later this month.

And if some minds aren't changed on the administrative level, Inkster will chalk up an easy victory Friday night. Robichaud school officials have informed Inkster that they will not send a team to Inkster Friday night because of a fear of violence (See Related Story on this page).

If Robichaud is a "no show", Inkster will have a 6-1 record in the SAC and remain a game out of first.

"I have no comment on what is going on," said Dennard. "My philosophy and policy always has been to get my team ready to play."

And play the Vikings did against Oak Park. Inkster exploded to a 21-14 lead after eight minutes and increased that margin to 44-24 at intermission as Dennard substituted freely throughout most of the game.

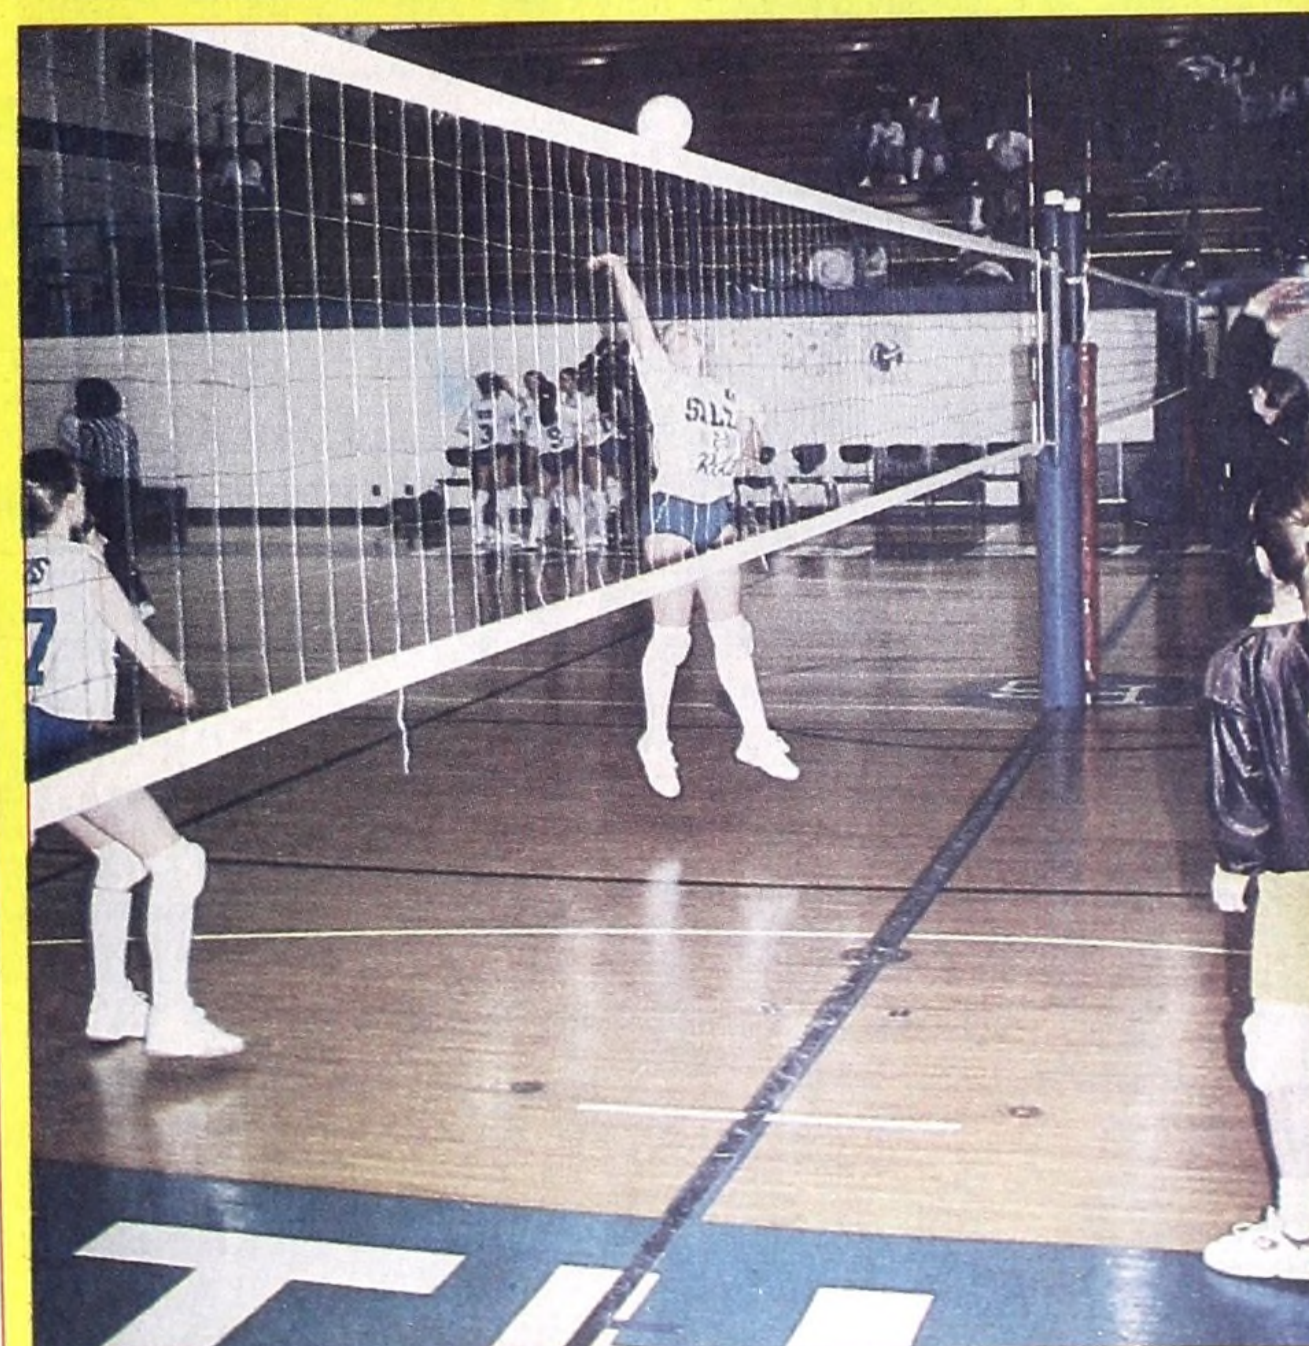

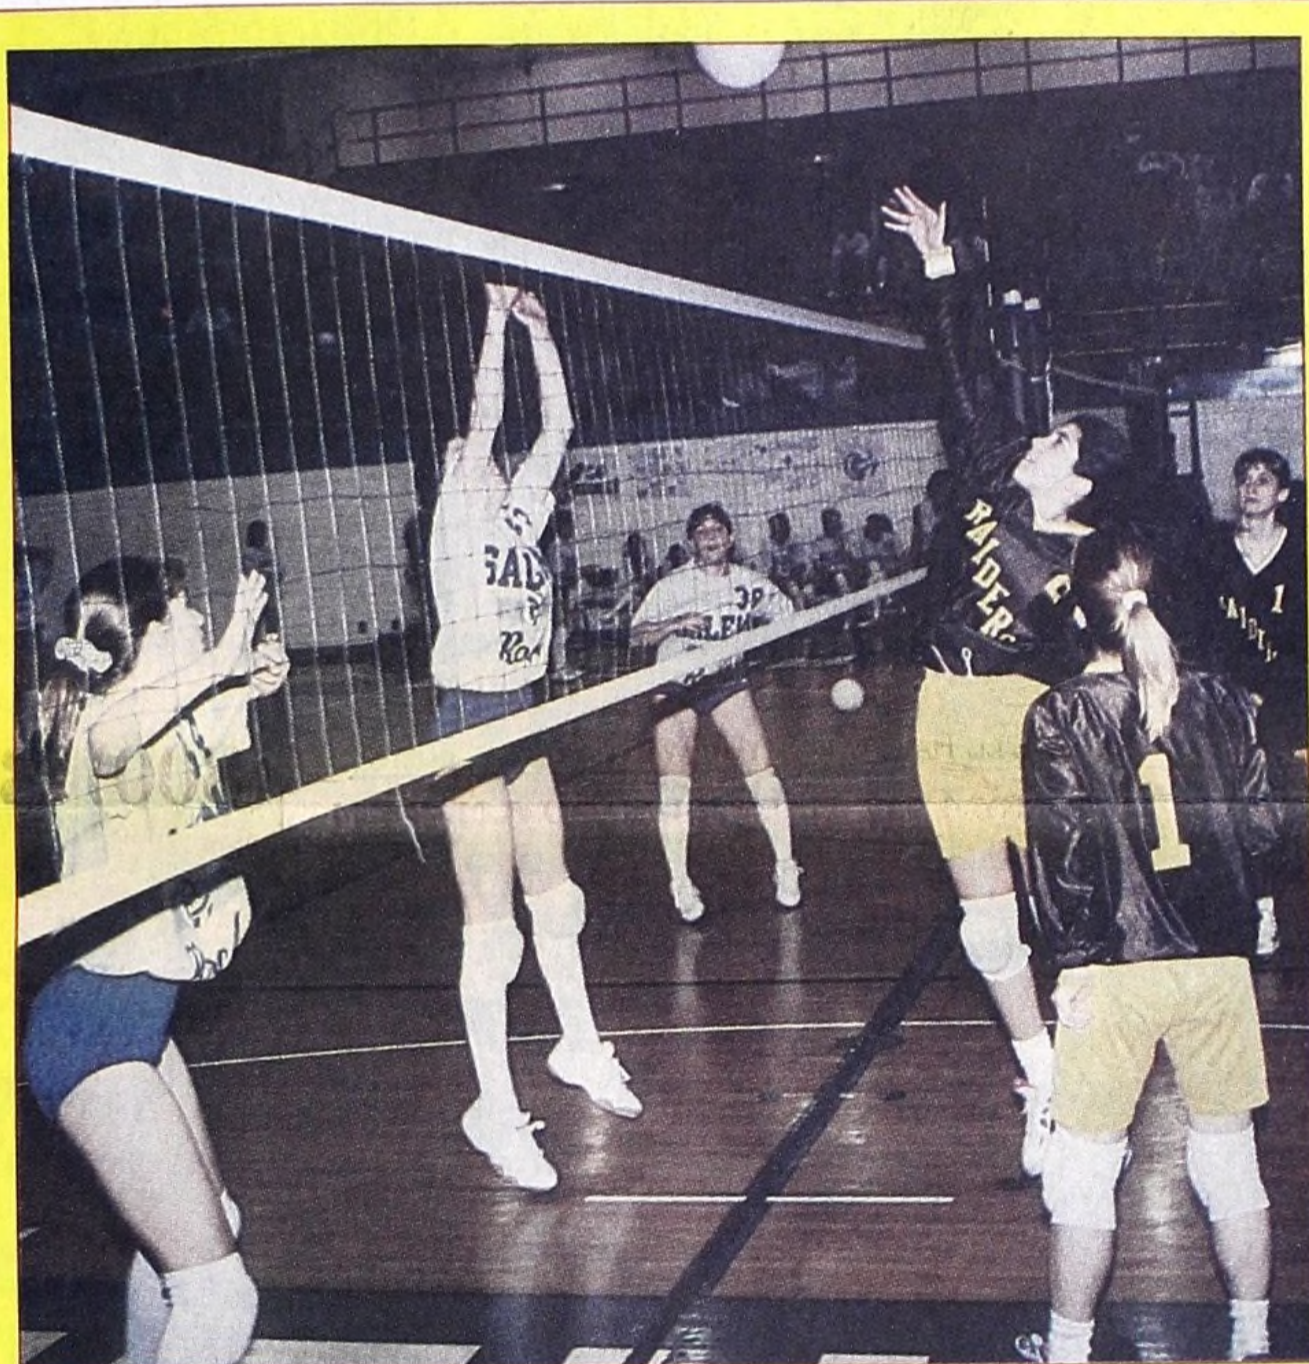

Inkster's 6-6 senior sensation Albert White continued to toss in baskets at a record pace. He canned 25 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and also had four blocked shots to lead all scorers.

White had an excellent supporting cast in this victory. Perry Pope and Haneef Sabree scored 14 points each, while Anthony Holt chipped 13. Chris Lindsay and Vince Lee each had nine.

"It was a good game for us," said Dennard. "Our fast break was working for once and we played a terrific game on defense. We were tough, and when we are, we can play against anyone."

Ecorse almost tossed a wrench into Inkster's repeat dreams. The Red Raiders gave the defending champ a scare before dropping a 64-62 decision to the visitors.

It was Darrick Davidson's 15-footer that was all net with Displaying their winning ways, the Plymouth-Salem volleyball team defeated the North Farmington Raiders last Wednesday. Coach Melinda Cain said the 1994-95 senior team "is a good group of kids." She named Amy Price, outside hitter and a defense specialist, and Laura Logsdon, a leading hitter and an outstanding blocker, as assets to the team. Rockets rally past Central in 71-62 win

MCN Staff Writer

Maybe, just maybe, the loss to Wayne Memorial is just what Westland John Glenn cagers needed.

After handing over the bragging rights to the Wayne-Westland School District to their natural rivals a couple of weeks ago, coach Michael Schuette and the Rockets have soared back to beat such title hopefuls as Plymouth-Salem and Walled Lake Central in the Western Lakes Conference.

Sandwiched between the two conference victories also was an impressive triumph on Tuesday over Walled Lake Western.

"We are definitely playing more consistent ball since the loss to Wayne," stressed Schuette whose club has amassed an impeccable 5-0 conference record as the week began. "The kids are being more selective with their shots and more aggressive on defense."

"We have to continue to play this way down the stretch."

Glenn had one big obstacle in its title path Tuesday night. The Rockets were scheduled to play a very capable Plymouth-Canton which also has designs on the conference title this year. On Friday, Glenn begins the second-round of league competition at home against Livonia Stevenson.

On Tuesday, Glenn shook off a stubborn Walled Lake Western, 75-60, thanks to a balanced scoring assault led by 6-11 senior Guy Rucker. Rucker, fully recovered from an ankle twist suffered in the Wayne game, took command of the game and the boards in the second half, scoring 14 of his team-high 20 points in the final two frames.

Walled Lake Central set the pace in the early stages as senior forward Paul Whiting came up with a couple of treys en route to a game-high 24 points. However, Rucker, joined by Albert Jones and Savon Hubbard managed to provide the scoring power in the second half to avert the upset.

Central made Glenn sweat for its 71-62 victory Friday night. The previously undefeated conference co-leader jumped to a 38-30 halftime lead as the Rockets struggled to find their range. With Terrel Tigner and Rucker each scoring two points and Al Jones contributing a pair of buckets, the Westlanders jumped out in front 8-0 before Central came back on the strength of Greg Tobias' excellent long-distance shooting.

"We knew that they could shoot well from the perimeters," said coach Schuette, "and in that first half they did. We decided to switch to a zone defense in the second half and it worked."

The spark that eventually turned the tide for the Rockets was a mid-court steal by Hubbard who turned the Central miscue into an easy layup.

Rucker finished with 24 points and 12 rebounds while Tigner chipped in 16 while Jones finished with 13 points.

Wayne recovers from road trip

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

A wearied Wayne will return home from a long road trip this week hoping to recover from a couple of losses that seriously dampened its title plans.

Coach Chuck Henry's cagers lost a 60-59 decision, that wasn't as close as the final score would indicate, to Monroe.

The loss dropped Wayne into third place in the Mega Conference Red Division, two games off the pace set by Belleville, the defending champ. Wayne came back and defeated Garden City 84-50 Friday night to keep its slim title hopes alive.

"We have played our last five games on the road," said

Henry who, although he would not attribute the losses to Belleville and Monroe to the road trip, added "that it didn't help."

"I don't know what it was, whether we were tired or not mentally ready or a combination of both," the veteran coach continued. "But we didn't play up to our potential last week."

Monroe capitalized on the cold-shooting and error-prone Zebras and leaped to 16-6 and 29-17 leads for the first two periods. At one point in the first half, the host had built up a 20-point advantage before Wayne, thanks to some stellar performances by Rodney Hurst and Mike Colwell, who came off the bench, rallied.

Romulus High student shoots for the pro ranks

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Romulus star Antoine Stoudmire is hoping to build a family tradition of basketball prowess this year...one that could some day lead him to the professional basketball ranks.

Stoudmire hopes to follow other Romulus High grads into the pro ranks such as Shaler Holliman, who joined Utah State in the late 1960's, John Long with the Pistons in the late 1970's, and currently Terry Mills of the Pistons and Grant Long of the Atlanta Hawks.

Stoudmire, Romulus High School's hottest shooter, has been playing basketball since the fourth grade. "But it wasn't until the 10th grade after suddenly gaining four inches and 20 pounds that I started to improve dramatically and to get noticed," he said.

Now Stoudmire, who stands 6 foot three inches tall and weighs 188 pounds, gets almost all of the notice he needs, as the Eagles trot out to warm up prior to their varsity games.

Known to his friends as "Pooh Bear," Stoudmire feels his self confidence has been growing rapidly in the last two years, as he joins in AAU Summer League play as well as Eastern Michigan Team Competitions.

Two years ago, he developed brief leg problems while playing in the Eastern Michigan competition and narrowly lost out being named MVP after missing two games. This

He's done everything we have asked of him and has proved to be a great credit to our sports program.

- Del Giudice

past summer however he was named MVP as well as Outstanding Camper and Dunking Contest winner. "I also was the runner-up in the one-on-one competitions," he said.

Stoudmire, sporting his now familiar No. 40, feels he has added a lot of maturity to his play this year, as well as physical size. "I feel I'm reading the court (the opposition) a lot better this year and have been averaging about 20 points per game," he said.

While one of his favorite professional players is Grant Hill of the Pistons, Stoudmire has no favorite team to join if he fulfills his dream of playing in the pros.

In the meantime, he challenges his half-brother, Eric Summers, a starting forward at Belleville High School, to occasional one-on-one competitive workouts and helps train his nine-year-old brother, Tylon Pitts, in his basketball skills.

Stoudmire predicts Tylon, will be taller than him, possibly 6-6 at maturity level, and an equally top-notch basketball player.

"He plays basketball outside every day," Stoudmire said, "even if he has to shovel the snow off the court ahead of time. In addition, he attends everyone of my games and watches the pros many times on TV."

As for his personal future, Stoudmire said he is looking at attending the University of Detroit Mercy, where he hopes to study sports medicine or marine biology.

It also would give him the opportunity to play under the watchful eye of Coach Perry Watson, a man he admires for his style and attitude.

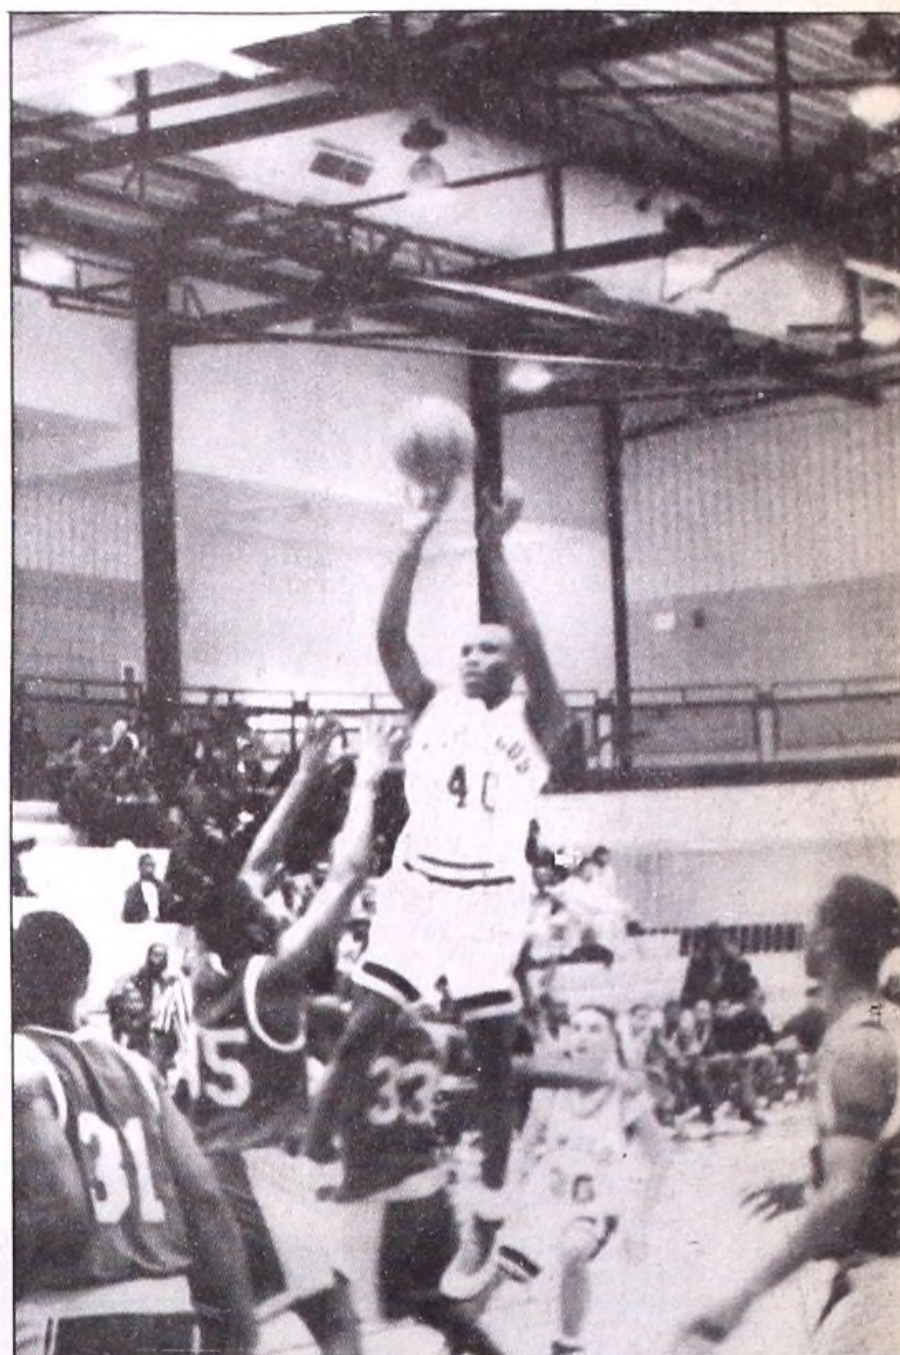

Stoudmire's current coach Guy Del Giudice is one of Stoudmire's strongest backers saying "his total game is better this year as he is now our top rebounder and when we post him up against our tallest opponents he always gives us something positive."

Del Giudice said Stoudmire is shooting 55 percent from the floor and over 60 percent from the foul line and is averaging 12 rebounds a game.

"He is both a team player and our leader," Del Giudice says, and Stoudmire is on the floor about 30 out of 32 minutes usually each game. "This past weekend, Stoudmire dropped in 17 points in the Eagles' 71-64 point win at Highland Park," the coach continued.

"To keep active physically in the gym, Stoudmire has also signed on as manager of the Romulus girl's basketball team," Del Giudice said.

"He's done everything we have asked of him and has proved to be a great credit to our sports program," Del Giudice said.

In addition to that Del Giudice said Stoudmire is a great guy off the field too and looks forward to Stoudmire's career in the college ranks.

Hurst drilled all nine of his points in the second half, connecting on a pair of threes. He also got his hands on the ball with seconds left in the game, but the ball slipped away before he got off the final shot.

"We hit seven threes in the final quarter," said Henry. "That's what put us back in the game. But we spotted them too much of a lead in the first half and it was just too much to overcome."

Wayne outscored Monroe 29-12 in the final eight minutes to come within a basket of erasing the deficit.

Jameel Wooden scored 13 of his game-high 20 points in the first half to lift Wayne to a lopsided 84-50 victory over Garden City Friday night. The Zebras led by a "trey" (34-31) at halftime before Richard Rashad, Lorenzo Guess and Hurst decided it was time to get down to business.

Rashad had one of his better scoring nights, tossing in a game-high 23. Lorenzo Guess finished with 11 and Hurst added 13.

Vikings

less than 10 seconds remaining in the game that broke a 62-all deadlock in Inkster's favor. Up to that point it was anyone's ball game.

Ecorse, with Will Haskett and Cory Smith showing the way, led 17-16 after one period and upped their lead to 33-29 at the halfway point. Realization that the title could slip away if they lost this one, Inkster came back in the second half and pulled out the victory.

The Vikings, again with reliable White at the wheel, outscored their SAC rivals 22-17 in the final eight minutes to win the crucial battle.

White again was phenomenal as he drilled 29 points. Haneef counted 19 for the evening. On the other side of the scoring ledger, Haskett was the top scorer with 27, while Smith, who was tough to stop under the boards, finished with 15.

"We were fortunate to win this one," said Dennard. "Believe me, they played us tough. And when Davidson got the ball and it left his hands, as soon as it was airborne, I knew it was good."

In the meantime, Robichaud continued to have its problems as Coach Ron Tarrant's Bulldogs fell to the league leader, Willow Run, 65-43, Friday night.

"We were taken out of our game in the second period," said Tarrant. "We didn't execute or run the offense."

Robichaud stayed with the Flyers for the first eight minutes as Matt Alexander collected seven of his team high 15 points in the quarter. But it was all downhill for the Bulldogs after the initial quarter.

Canton senior tunes into women musicians

By MARGO DEWEY
MCN News Editor

She's a senior at Plymouth-Canton High School who has a mission to seek out as many listeners as she can who will listen to the intelligence and wisdom of the female voice.

Mandy King has created Anonymous Was A Woman, a new radio program for WSDP 88.1 FM which is owned and operated by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Having been on the air only two months, King's unique program is definitely receiving a welcomed reception from peers and admirers of the show.

The emphasis of the program is tuned into female musicians and poets.

"I got on staff last spring with WSDP," King said. "We didn't have a show at all like this. I just started thinking about it, and then I got the idea in the spring. Over the summer I worked on it. My first show aired Nov. 21 of last year."

King said her inspiration for the theme of Anonymous came from one of her teachers, Diane Matsumoto, who is strong advocate of women's rights. "She was a big influence for me which is probably why I came up with a show focusing on women," King said. "I thought maybe I'll do the show once because getting good stuff is really hard."

"Usually our specialty shows are weekly, but I decided to have the show on just monthly."

The title of the show, Anonymous, was selected by King from a Virginia Wolf essay.

"The essay is about the difficulties of being a woman artist," King said. "I felt it was appropriate for the show."

Anonymous showcases female musical groups and famous poets. King accepts requests from her fan club when she's on the air 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. the third Monday of every month.

"I get this paper called Women Times, and I just sum up some of the articles if they are interesting," King said. "For instance there was an article that Michigan had the three top sexist judges in the state, and I talked about that on the show."

King is hoping in the near future to have more interaction with her audience. She doesn't, however, want to get into "male bashing". "Someone called the last show and said they liked it a lot so I made them a tape," King said. "That was really great to know someone was listening and enjoyed what I'm doing. I want to hear from other people about what they think of women who are successful whether it be in business, arts or entertainment."

King said she believes women are not getting enough recognition, especially female artists, musicians and poets.

"I play some small bands and big bands with female musicians," King said. "I want to show that even though you are a small band, you can still get recognition. An all-female band, however, is hard to find because you do have a few males in every band."

The popular radio host already has her future mapped out. When she graduates from high school this year, she will head to Columbia College where she intends to major in music business and either work for a record label or a management company.

"I want to have a minor in broadcasting management or art," King said. What's her favorite radio station?

"WSDP 88.1," King said.

Chinese family follows tradition in New Year celebration

By GRETCHEN MADICK
MCN Special Writer

The Chinese New Year is a labor of love at the Wu household in Canton, as it requires plenty of preparation in the kitchen.

Special foods are served on Chinese dishes, purchased by Swen Hwa (Julie) in Taiwan while visiting her parents, and those foods are only used for special occasions. Oriental vegetables are becoming easier to find than they were 10 years ago, and they are now available at local supermarkets. However, the egg rolls she makes for neighbors and coworkers are a lot of work.

Wu has shared her culture with neighbors and friends.

"The egg rolls for neighbors took the whole day. You have to wait until they are cold to wrap them tight and bring them to the office, too," Wu said.

The Chinese New Year meal might have roast pork, roast chicken and roast duck and Chinese vegetables served along with the egg rolls.

Wu's husband Chen Yen explains, "You make a different offering to different gods. For one, you have to use fish, pork or beef. The god of heaven will have the best one and the god of land less."

After the offering, it's eaten.

"Put chicken in boiling water as a symbol to clean everything, and use the broth to cook the vegetables in," he continued. "A toast is given. You say, 'For the happiness forever,' thereby celebrating the completion of one thing, the beginning of another."

Swen Hwa's kitchen time is limited this year, as she is an accountant and "now I have to close the books," she said. "For the last several weekends, I worked Saturday or Sunday every month."

This year, New Year's Eve falls on Monday and Tuesday is the New Year.

In the past she has spent two weeks preparing for it, beginning with rice cakes.

Wu's temple was on the family property. They had a long or square table with offerings to the god of heaven, which was done on midnight of New Year's Eve, all over the country.

One or two days prior, decorations would be prepared and writings posted on the top of the door, on the chicken coop, in the place where the cattle were kept and in the kitchen.

"Supposedly, there's a kitchen god watching the whole family through the year. According to legend, this kitchen god will go up to the god of heaven to report the family's behavior during the past year. Like a performance review," Wu said.

4. Heat the oil in pan, deep fry egg rolls, use high heat and fry about one minute or until golden.

PUBLIC NOTICE
REGARDING A PROPOSED MODIFICATION TO THE RESOURCE CONSERVATION AND RECOVERY ACT PERMIT ISSUED BY THE UNITED STATES ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY TO ENVIRONMENTAL WASTE CONTROL, INC INKSTER, MICHIGAN MID 057 002 602

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (U.S. EPA) hereby gives notice that it proposes to modify the Environmental Waste Control, Inc.'s (EWC's) Federal portion of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) permit, issued on October 15, 1992, and that the U.S. EPA will be accepting comments on the proposed modifications.

EWC operates a facility located in Inkster, Michigan. The Federal portion of the RCRA permit required, among other things, EWC to perform various investigations regarding potential or actual releases of hazardous wastes and hazardous constituents at certain locations in the facility.

On December 22, 1992, pursuant to 40 CFR 124.19, EWC petitioned for the Environmental Appeals Board (EAB) to review certain conditions of the Federal portion of the permit. On May 13, 1994, the EAB issued an order denying part of the EWC petition, but also remanding a portion of the Federal permit to Region 5 for modifications. Today's proposed modifications address the EAB's remand order. The proposed permit modification is issued under the provisions of Section 7004(b) of RCRA, 42 U.S.C. 69974, and 40 CFR Part 124.

The proposed permit modification and the fact sheet explaining the modification are available for public inspection and copying at the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Waste Management Division, 608 West Allegan Street, Lansing, Michigan 48933, during regular business hours and at the Inkster Public Library, located at 2005 Inkster Road, Inkster, Michigan. These same materials, and other supporting documents which make up the Administrative Record, are available for viewing at the U.S. EPA Region 5 office located at 77 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Illinois 60604, from 8:30 to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. To view the Administrative Record, or obtain additional information, contact Lorna M. Jereza at (312) 353-5110.

Any person interested in submitting comments on the proposed permit modifications must do so within the public comment period which begins on January 27, 1995 and closes on March 20, 1995. All comments should be submitted in writing to:

Youths report jackets stolen

Four Westland youths allegedly had their jackets stolen from them behind the Westland Kmart store late Monday evening, according to Westland police.

The youths, ages 13, 14 and two age 15, were walking along the east side of the store, located at 165 S. Wayne Road, when they heard someone whistle at them, reports said.

The three fled, but when they stopped to catch their breath, two alleged robbers caught up with them and asked if the four had tampered with a black Firebird car. The three said they had no knowledge of any tampering and did not know what the alleged assailants were talking about.

The two robbers then allegedly told the youths to hand over their starter jackets, according to police.

One perpetrator allegedly said, "Give us your jackets or we'll kick your asses."

The four complied and the robbers instructed them to depart the location going westbound while they fled in the opposite direction with the sports jackets valued at a total of $550, reports said.

The perpetrators are described as 18-year-old white males with shaved dark hair, one approximately 5-feet, 10-inches tall, weighing 185 pounds, the other described as 5-feet, 7-inches tall, weighing 120 pounds with a pony tail in his hair and a red baseball cap.

Wayne man faces firearm possession arraignment

A Feb. 15 arraignment on information has been scheduled for a Wayne man charged with possession of firearms in Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court.

Richard Lee Batalucco was arrested after a search was conducted of his apartment by Wayne police.

"We received a tip from a caller who informed us of the defendant possessing weapons," said Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews. "The individual is a felon, and felons cannot possess firearms. We were able to obtain a search warrant, and we found numerous firearms at the apartment."

Police will not disclose the location of the apartment pending further investigation.

Batalucco stood mute during his arraignment on information Jan. 23 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold. A $5,000 personal bond was set.

The Feb. 1 preliminary examination for the defendant was waived, and he was bound over to Recorder's Court.

Marijuana found on suspect, 19

A 19-year-old male was arrested Jan. 21 just after midnight at a local motel on Ford Road in Canton for suspected possession of 78 hits of LSD and marijuana, contained within a small cassette tape.

Other teens partying at the motel were released.

The case was turned over to the Western Wayne Narcotics Team.

Shooting victim to testify who shot him

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

The doctors at the hospital had given him up for dead.

And a daily newspaper erroneously reported the Inkster teen had been pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital after being shot in the head.

But 16-year-old Joseph Johnson of Inkster did not die. He refused to die.

And last week, Johnson told detectives who shot him. Acting upon the information the victim provided them, police arrested a suspect who was arraigned Wednesday in the shooting.

"He came back from the dead," said Inkster Detective Richard Rashad.

Rashad said he was standing in the hospital corridor when the doctors came out and said that they had little hope for Johnson. "We all shook our heads."

Johnson's relatives and friends, however, re-

"Johnson's relatives and friends, however, refused to give up. They began to pray."

fused to give up. They began to pray. The prayers apparently were heard.

Johnson was airlifted by helicopter to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor where doctors performed the life-saving operation.

According to police, the bullet struck Johnson in the temple and pierced the optic nerve. The victim has problems with his vision, but he doesn't have any problems communicating, they added.

Rashad met with the victim, who is a sophomore at Inkster High School, who gave the Inkster detective the name of the person who he says shot him.

Police obtained a warrant from the Wayne

County Prosecutor's Office for the arrest of 16-year-old Tyrese Ivey who was taken into police custody, without incident, at a fast-food restaurant in Farmington Hills where he is employed.

Police also petitioned and received a waiver from the Wayne County Juvenile Court to try Ivey as an adult.

Ivey appeared before Judge Sylvia James in 22nd District Court (Inkster) on Wednesday for arraignment on attempted murder and felony firearms. He pleaded not guilty and was returned to the Wayne County Youth Home to await examination. The exam is scheduled for 9 a.m. Feb. 8.

Judge James set bond at $75,000 cash.

Johnson was shot in the head on Nov. 17 in the 4000 block of Kenwood Street. After teetering between life and death, Johnson's condition turned from critical to stable on Nov. 25, when he was taken out of the intensive care unit.

Police said that Johnson is out of the hospital and will remain under protective custody until the exam and trial are completed.

Celebrity skater assists youths

By MARGO DEWEY

He's an Olympic medalist who has seen it all and done it all in the professional world of ice skating, but Peter Barna's real enjoyment is helping youngsters.

Recently the bronze medalist spent a few hours with Wayne and Westland youths teaching them the tricks of the trade. Barna also appeared in the Wayne Winterfest Ice Show Jan. 27 dazzling audiences of all ages.

"I've been skating since I was six years old, and I still enjoy it today," said Barna.

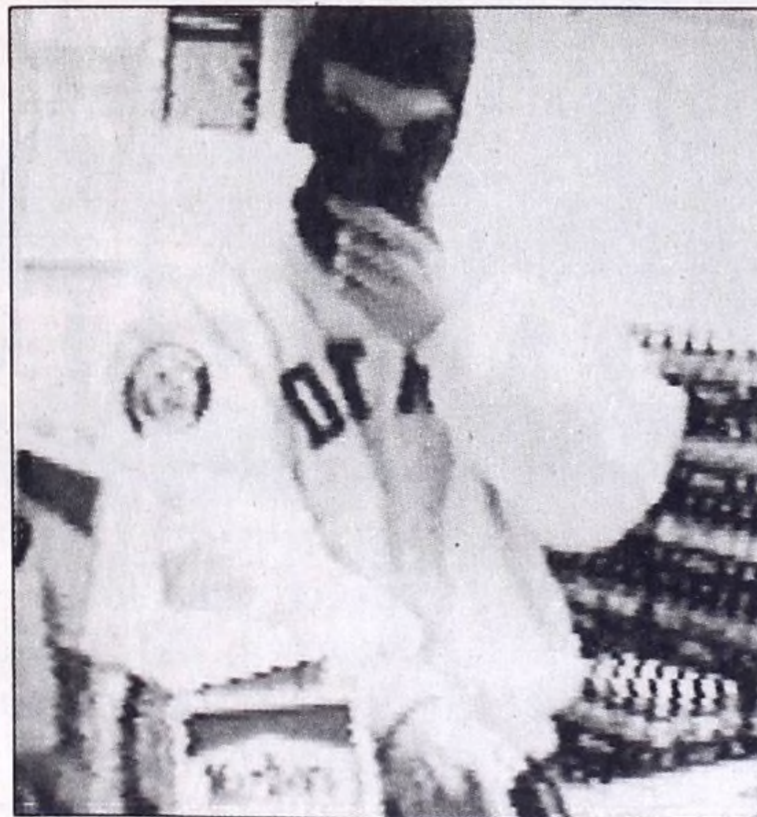

The 1992 champion was inspired to skate as a youth by his aunt who was an expert in the sport.

"Although I trained for the Olympics, it wasn't my initial goal," Barna said. "I just skated for the enjoyment. Now, I enjoy training

Ninja strikes again

The mysterious Ninja-style bandit struck the same Romulus service station a second time last Wednesday.

Lt. Kenneth Kraus revealed that the bandit, who had robbed the gas station just before the new year, entered the office gun in hand about 1 a.m. and ordered the 53-year-old male Romulus attendant to "open the cash register."

When the attendant replied, "In a second," Kraus said, the bandit countered, "there's no second about it. Give me all the bills."

He then ordered the attendant to sprawl on the floor and fled from the Middlebelt Road station.

Romulus police then called in the services of the Taylor Police searching dog, but the K-9 tracker lost the scent a short distance from the station.

Where in the first hold-up the bandit was dressed in black head to foot, Kraus said, this time he also sported a white nylon style Detroit Tigers baseball jacket.

Police hunt Belleville resident accused of shooting key witness

By TOM MOORADIAN
MCN Staff Writer

Inkster police said on Thursday they will seek a warrant charging a Belleville man with attempted murder of a key witness.

The suspect, a fugitive, is wanted in connection with the critical wounding of Maurice Gee, who was scheduled to testify on Feb. 8 against two men who are accused in the shooting death of 23-year-old Eric Austin.

Austin was slain Dec. 10 in the back yard of his home in the 1100 block of Helen Street. The mortally-wounded Austin was attempting to get to his home when his killers caught up to him and shot him in the head.

Inkster police have arrested and charged Antonio J. Peay, 19, and Tywan A. Borthwell, 20, both of Detroit, with first-degree murder and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony in connecting with Austin's killing.

Gee, 17, is a key witness against the two defendants whose examinations will be conducted in 22nd District Court before Judge Sylvia James.

Gee was shot five times while he was standing in the 1100 block of Helen Street. Two of the bullets struck Gee in the chest and one in the thigh. The other wounds were to the right cheek and legs.

Gee was rushed to an area hospital where he is reported in critical condition.

Inkster Detective James Horne said he met with the victim who, from his hospital bed, provided the detective with the name of the gunman who shot him.

"We are looking for the suspect," said Horne, "and we believe that he's still in the area."

Horne said he is withholding the name of the suspect until the issuance of a warrant.

"I will be meeting with the prosecutors tomorrow (Friday)," said Horne, who added that the defendant is known to area law enforcement. "We know who he is and it would be best for him to turn himself in."

The suspect has prior arrests for possession of illegal drugs and assault with intent to murder.

Gee and the murdered victim, Austin, along with two other friends had been standing on a corner at Helen around 8 p.m. on Dec. 10 when three men dressed in black came to the corner and opened fire. The witnesses told police that Austin was hit in the initial volley, but he managed to run toward his home.

The gunmen continued to pursue the victim and shot him dead in the back yard of his house.

A week later, gunmen showed up in the same vicinity and shot at and struck Austin's sister, who was hit in the shoulder and leg.

At least one Inkster detective, Charles Givens, believes the shootings and the killing "are in retaliation or revenge".

Givens did not believe, he said, that "this (killing) was drug related. But we really won't know until we get some of these people in custody and talked to them."

2 convicted in airport shotgun killing of 54-year-old

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Two Detroit men were convicted Thursday of the shotgun killing of an Ewart resident, while he sat in his car near Detroit Metropolitan Airport last year awaiting the arrival of his mother's airplane from Florida.

Convicted by a Wayne County Jury composed of four women and eight men that deliberated a little over two hours were Clarence Scott, 33, the reported gunman in the case, and his hold-up partner, Isaac Collier, 26.

Scott was convicted of first-degree murder and felony murder. Collier was found guilty of felony murder, second degree murder and unarmed robbery (for stealing a woman's car after the robbery).

Sentencing is slated for Feb. 24. Both men face life imprisonment.

The incident began, the jury heard, as the two defendants borrowed another man's car and drove to Romulus the day before Easter 1994 to commit a holdup to take care of an old $275 drug debt.

The pair reportedly struck out trying to find a possible holdup victim near an airport hotel, so they cruised over to the McDonald's restaurant at Middlebelt and Wick roads in Romulus.

There, according to testimony, they spotted Elwin Lillie, 54, of Ewart, Mich., seated in his car reading a newspaper. Lillie was awaiting a plane carrying his mother, Marian, who was flying to Metro Airport from her winter home in Winter Garden, Fla.

When Mr. Lillie tried to back his car out of the parking space to avoid being robbed, police said, Scott reportedly fired his shotgun at Lillie's head, killing him instantly.

Lillie's car reportedly hit the bandits' borrowed car, temporarily blocking their escape.

The pair fled on foot in separate directions. Suddenly Collier reportedly spotted Cornelia Ford filling up her 1992 Grand Prix at a nearby gas station. Collier forced Ford to surrender the car, picked up Scott nearby and fled back to Detroit.

Detective Sgt. Gordon Maliniak and others traced the damaged car back to its owner, obtained a composite drawing of the suspects from a McDonald's customer, Dean Patten, and other information from restaurant customers.

Collier was arrested the Tuesday after Easter and Scott surrendered three days later.

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Kevin Simowski praised the "round the clock Romulus police work and in particular the efforts of Sgts. Maliniak and Michael Ondejko.

"Their investigative work in interviewing many of the friends of the defendants (mostly Detroit street people) went a long way in solving this case," Simowski said.

Simowski said there were a lot of ironies in this case including the fact that the incident happened the day before Easter, the victim was named Lillie and a potted Easter lily the victim had bought for his 80-year-old mother are all part of those ironies.

The lily plant was still in the car when police arrived after the shooting.

The scariest part of the whole case, the prosecutor said, was the fact that these two men were out hunting for a victim.

"It shows at times we all are potential victims," Simowski said.

Police investigate robbery of 100 cigarette packages

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
MCN Staff Writer

An alleged armed robber stole 100 packages of cigarettes from the 7-Eleven convenience store, located at 1826 S. Merriman Road in Westland early Thursday morning, according to Westland police.

The alleged robbery occurred around 1:22 a.m. when the perpetrator entered the store and began loading packages of cigarettes into his coat, according to reports.

When the clerk looked at him, the alleged robber said, "Don't mess with me cause I have a weapon and you'll get hurt."

The female clerk proceeded to pick up the telephone to call police and the assailant said, "Go ahead and call the police. They won't catch me," and fled westbound on Palmer Road on foot, police said.

A witness in the store flagged down a Wayne police officer and pointed to the direction the alleged perpetrator fled, but the assailant was not found. The clerk and suspect said there was a second person talking with the man at the location.

The alleged robber is described as a white male, approximately 5-feet, 10-inches tall, with a very thin build, dark hair and mustache, sunken eyes, wearing a black nylon jacket with an oriental design on back and blue jeans. The witnesses could not provide a description of the second person.

Pizza delivery man allegedly robbed by masked thieves

A pizza delivery man was robbed as he attempted to deliver food to a home located on the 38500 block of Belliveau Street in Westland late Wednesday evening, Westland police said.

The alleged armed robbery occurred when the 17-year-old Broadway Pizza delivery man pulled his vehicle into the driveway at the home and exited the car to bring the pizza to the door, according to reports.

The alleged victim heard noises in the pine trees behind him and was confronted by two masked men, one armed with a semi-automatic pistol, police said.

The gunman stared at the victim for a few seconds, according to reports, and then took out the dark-colored pistol and pointed it at him saying, "Give me your money."

The delivery man gave the alleged assailant $60 cash from his pocket and a second offender took the pizza, worth approximately $16. The gunman instructed the alleged victim to stare at the license plate on his vehicle. As he was doing so, the delivery man heard a car drive down Belliveau and the two assailants move toward the vehicle, police said.

The alleged victim was unable to see the vehicle, but described the gunman as a thin white male approximately 18 years of age, wearing black clothing and a bandana covering his face and a possible second bandana covering his hair. The second perpetrator was described as a white male wearing dark clothing and a bandana over his face.

The resident homeowner was confronted by police after the occurrence and said he had no knowledge or any pizza order or strange activity in front of his home.

Pre-trial scheduled in alleged illegal driving of stolen vehicle

By AL POST
MCN Staff Writer

Two men, who Romulus police claimed smashed their stolen car into two other vehicles last Monday, were arrested in Detroit on charges they were operating a second car they stole in Romulus shortly after the accident.

Charged with illegally driving a stolen car, receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100 and being habitual offenders, were Randy Halstead, 27, of Ida and Terrace Matero, 30, of Detroit. They were arraigned Tuesday before 34th District Court Judge William Szlinis and ordered held in lieu of $25,000 bail. A pre-trial hearing is slated in the 34th District Court on Wednesday.

According to Detective Lt. Kenneth Kraus, the pair were traveling north on Goddard Road (near Romaine Road), when the stolen 1994 GEO they were riding in failed to make the curve and struck a 1992 Ford operated by a 42-year-old Romulus man. The GEO had been stolen from a Melvindale home on Jan. 19, Romulus police said.

The stolen car then careened into a 1993 Pontiac driven by a 71-year-old Wayne woman, who was treated at Annapolis Hospital for minor injuries, police said.

The pair left the badly damaged GEO behind and then stole a 1989 Mercury Marquis in Romulus and fled from the city.

Detroit police spotted the stolen Marquis parked in a Detroit parking lot. They kept the car under surveillance until the two men returned to it and made the arrest at that time.

The Marquis auto was recovered without apparent damage, police said.

Survey speculates on trial outcome

What do orange peels, white Broncos and Halloween costumes have in common?

If you don't know the answer to this question, you had better take a second and check your pulse. O.J. Simpson, commonly known as the "Juice," has been the subject of a worldwide media blitz, the likes of which has not been seen since the days of Charles Lindbergh.

Never to be discounted, Michigan Community Newspapers decided to conduct an informal survey consisting of one question: Do you think O.J. Simpson is guilty or not guilty?

Using the combined knowledge - and guesses - of the residents of Belleville, Canton, Inkster, Romulus, Wayne and Westland, this is what you, the reader, thinks:

Of the 146 people surveyed, 28 percent said that the Juice is guilty; 18 percent argued that he was innocent, and the remaining 54 percent were either unsure or simply did not care.

One Inkster resident felt that the Juice was taking up far too much television time.

"I think they need to quit playing around and get this thing together. They have been slinging around evidence, but not doing anything about it, and they're cutting into my soaps," the Inkster resident said.

A Wayne man also felt strongly about his television viewing, saying, "I couldn't care less! I'm just tired of seeing it on TV all the time."

Still others lent their own perspective as to what really happened:

- He's covering up for his son and Kato, said a Canton resident.

- "The Mafia killed them because (Robert) Goldman owed them money," a Belleville man suggested.

- A resident of Westland felt that the media was blowing the whole trial out of proportion, saying, "I don't give a flying ---- about O.J. Simpson. He is a rich man, and they are taking advantage of his American right to a fair trial by so much publicity."

If given the opportunity, this publication could be filled with the various comments about the O.J. Simpson saga, however, there would not be enough space for all of the comments.

One thing can be said for sure, people have formed their own opinions, yet many are still left waiting, unsure of what to think, until it is all over.

Editor's note: The survey was conducted and the statistics compiled under the supervision of Circulation Manager Justin Wilcox.

Criminologist sees future implications of trial

A criminologist from Eastern Michigan University believes the O.J. Simpson trial may make new laws in domestic violence cases.

While the trial has been the subject of tabloid sensationalism and back fence chatter, Gregg Barak, an EMU professor and criminologist, believes the trial will make some new law.

"Especially in domestic violence cases, defense attorneys representing battered women who have killed their abusers have wanted to get the history of abuse on the court record," said Barak. "Now, we have the O.J. double murder case and the opportunity for prosecutors to demonstrate the importance of keeping the history of domestic violence part of the record."

"I believe in the future, there will be some differentiation, different procedures for different offenses depending upon which histories are important and when they are not, and this case will contribute to that. In other words, there might be a different criminal procedure for different crimes, such as one for murder, one for rape and one for kidnapping," the criminologist said.

Barak speculated that, because Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Lance Ito doesn't want to have his rulings appealed, he is likely to take a middle-ground position on Simpson's history of domestic abuse against his ex-wife. Barak said Ito will allow testimony on some of the more recent incidents, including the victim's phone call to a domestic abuse shelter five days before she was murdered and a 911 telephone call made when the victim reported she was being threatened by Simpson.

"I don't think Ito will be overturned," said Barak. "His

"Ito, like most of the world now, is being influenced by the prosecution presenting detailed information on the domestic violence issue."

criminologist Gregg Barak

responses have been pretty balanced."

Barak, who heads the sociology, anthropology and criminology department of the college, believes both public opinion and that of the judge is beginning to turn against the former football and media star.

"Ito, like most of the world now, is being influenced by the prosecution presenting detailed information on the domestic violence issue. Judge Ito is a human being, as objective as he can be, but people are starting to dislike Mr. Simpson, and I think the judge is of that opinion," he said.

The defense will present

two or three scenarios showing Nicole Simpson in a negative way, such as being involved in a drug deal gone awry.

"Her character will be thoroughly assassinated," Barak said. "It is incumbent upon them to create reasonable doubt by presenting a situation that is as believable as the evidence against O.J."

Barak thinks the media will not have a direct influence on the outcome of the trial, and that the jury will be fair and reach their own conclusions.

And, Barak's speculation on the outcome?

"I'm betting on a hung jury," Barak said.

Guilty or not guilty

Attention of nation tuned to Simpson trial

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Managing Editor

From the first news reports about the deaths of Nicole Brown Simpson and Michael Goldman, the attention of the public has been riveted on the double slaying.

Thousands of television viewers followed O.J. Simpson's infamous "slow speed" chase on a California freeway, hoping to see the former football star either speed away in the now-famous white Bronco or surrender to the parade of police trailing behind the vehicle.

Watchers of the slow-speed chase were disappointed to find that their hours of television viewing did not reveal any exciting action - but, they were not disappointed to the point of forsaking their television vigils.

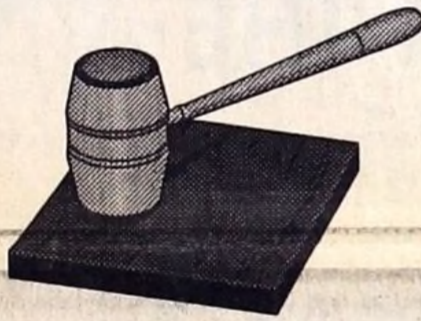

Through the arrest of the former football star, the selection of the jury and the beginning of the trial, the drama of the double homicide continued to grow with the introduction of the bloody glove, the trail of blood, the DNA testings, the past domestic violence and questions about the methods and techniques of evidence gathering.

The insatiable appetite of the public continues to keep its attention focused on the Simpson drama via the tabloids and mainstream newspapers and magazines, television specials, books from both the accused and other authors and the relentless television coverage - live, replays and commentaries.

How long will be public's craving for more information or misinformation on the O.J. Simpson trial last? We speculate that it will continue until the last tidbit of information has been squeezed out the juicy scandal and the last secret has been revealed from the shocking slayings.

Trial will influence future trials

With one exception, the O.J. Simpson case is a California thing, according to Levon King, Sumpter Township's attorney.

"It might have some future influence on the use of DNA evidence -- one of the trial's hotly contested issues," he said.

But he doubts whether California Judge Lance Ito's unprecedented decision to allow the prosecution to make a second opening statement will be followed in Michigan.

Prosecutor Marcia Clark received a second chance because Ito was trying to correct an earlier error, thereby avoiding a mistrial, King said.

The judge was trying to correct last minute evidence introduced by defense attorney Johnny Cochran during his opening statement. Under trial procedures, the evidence should have been given to the prosecutor in time for her to digest it and prepare a response.

King said, "Whenever an attorney, in a hotly contested case, says something to a jury that is arguably prejudicial, the judge is in a difficult position because the only way to be sure the error is corrected is to declare a mistrial. If you spend weeks picking a jury, you don't want everything to go down the tube by staring over again."

King doesn't think that the trial will hurt the legal system. To the contrary, it will help.

"With the public's high interest, many will learn about the law," he said.

He also favors televising court proceedings. "By nature, trials are public," he said. "In old England, trials were held in private and there were many abuses that could have only gone on in private. Public trials are a safeguard to the accused. The televising of a trial is an extension -- they're very

Case has makings of television soap opera

The O.J. Simpson murder trial has all the makings of a soap opera: money, sex, DNA testing and murder, according to Inkster attorney Steven Bullock.

"Viewers should remember that what they are watching on television is an elaborate version of an actual murder trial," Bullock said.

However, despite the intense media coverage of the trial, Bullock believes that the criminal justice system is effective. In fact, Bullock said he believes media coverage is a good way to allow the public into the courtroom and provide them with a better understanding of how the system works.

"I don't think the publicity has hurt the system. People should know as much as they can. That's why we have an open courtroom. It's open for the public to scrutinize," Bullock said. "For the most part I see no reason why there shouldn't be a camera in the courtroom."

Bullock said he feels people around the country will be more informed about the basics of the criminal justice system after viewing the Simpson case.

Although the attorney admits he has yet to see what kind of effect the Simpson case will have on his own cases, Bullock said he will find out next week with one of his clients facing a jury trial on murder charges.

"I will ask the potential jurors if they watched the trial and what kind of impression they had of the prosecutor, defense attorney and the jurors. Then I will ask them if they can set aside any impressions they have and focus on the case they have before them now," Bullock said.

The only area Bullock felt might be affected by media coverage was pre-trial public-public."

The atmosphere around the Simpson trial has been frequently likened to a circus. Has the hoopla and pretrial publicity hurt?

Yes, according to King, who said, "It's hard to get a jury with no preconceptions. Our notion of an unbiased jury is one that doesn't know anything about the case and hears the case in court. In this case, the pretrial publicity was very harmful -- harming both sides."

One of the prosecutor's techniques, introducing second-hand testimony about one of Simpson's dreams was too novel for King to analyze.

"I've never run into this," he said.

Finally, King gives the opening advantage to the prosecutor. "The defense lost because their failure to disclose evidence and witnesses boomeranged on them. The jury will view them as not playing fair," he said.

Trial is 'once in lifetime'

By AL POST

Romulus attorney Steve Robinson feels the current O.J. Simpson murder trial is so unique, "I don't expect to see another one like it in my lifetime."

Robinson, an associate in the Oakley and Oakley law firm on Goddard Road in Romulus, stated "I don't think the second opening statement incident will occur again, because I doubt we will ever see a case like this again."

The state was granted a 10-minute follow-up opening statement because Simpson's defense lawyers supposedly introduced a number of "surprise" witness names during its opening statement (without alerting the prosecution) and contrary to California court rules.

Robinson also doesn't feel that the trial to date has added any public luster to the legal profession in California, because he feels the media is spending too much time focusing on the lawyers than on the victims.

"As Michigan lawyers we are not making a conscious effort to follow this trial day by day, except for those elements of the case that are listed in the normal TV newscasts or printed media," Robinson said.

"I have no problem with TV in the courtroom, except for the fact that it could lead some lawyers or judges to perform excessively but it does provide a nice check and balance for the overall legal system."

Steve Robinson

"I have no problem with TV in the courtroom, except for the fact that it could lead some lawyers or judges to perform excessively," Robinson said, "but it does provide a nice check and balance for the overall legal system."

Once the trial gets beyond the opening statement stage, Robinson predicts, "it will get to be pretty boring on the day to day basis for the average TV viewer."

Robinson has high marks for Judge Lance Ito's actions to date.

"He has been given an extremely difficult job," Robinson said, "and must keep everyone aware that it is indeed his courtroom, not that belonging to any of the famous lawyers involved in the trial."

Minister looks for positive messages

By Rev. Brad Lewis

Recently, a Detroit radio station began including one good news story in each hourly news report. I find myself looking forward to hearing some good news to lighten up the barrage of reports about the troubled times in which we live.

Most of us certainly have problems enough to keep us busy without taking time to worry about whether or not what we say or do is seen as good news.

Yet I believe this is a primary problem with much of our society today. Most of us don't take the time to offer a positive image of ourselves to the world.

There is a legend that a missionary, lost at sea, was washed up on the edge of a remote native village. Half-dead from the starvation, exposure and sea water, he was found by the people of the village and was nursed back to health.

Subsequently, he lived among these people for 20 years. During the whole time he confessed no faith. He uttered no songs. He preached no sermons. He recited no scripture. But when people were sick, he attended them, sitting long into the night.

When people were hungry, he gave them food. When people were lonely, he was a source of company. He taught those willing to learn.

He was a source of enlightenment to those who were more knowledgeable. He always took the side of those who had been wronged. There was not a single human condition with which he did not identify.

After 20 years had passed, missionaries came from the sea to the village and began talking to the people about a man called Jesus, and after hearing of Jesus, the natives insisted that he had lived among them for the past 20 years.

"Come we will introduce you to the man about whom you have been speaking." The missionaries were led to a hut, and there they found their long-lost fellow missionary whom they had thought dead.

Jesus said "the spirit of the Lord is on me, because he (God) has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim freedom for the prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, to release the oppressed, to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor," Luke 4:18-19.

Anointed by the Holy Spirit Christians are to be Christ's image in the world continuing His work of proclaiming the good news. It doesn't take special training or knowledge or skill to fulfill Christ's presence in our hurting world. Consider using the following ideas to make Christ's image more widely seen in all that you do and say.

1. Say only nice things about people. There is a lot to be said for the old maxim "If you can't say anything nice, don't say anything at all."

2. Bring peace to every meeting. Strive to be someone who, when he or she enters a room, makes the spiritual and moral climate of that room better. Seek to maintain a positive attitude about life as you encounter the stress and concerns of each day.

3. Make every stranger you meet glad to have met you. Go through each day concentrating on accepting each person you meet and making no judgments. In other words try doing as the Apostle Paul counseled "not keeping score of wrongs."

4. Look for the image of Christ in all of creation. God created the universe and everything in it, therefore, Christ can be found in all of creation. As we seek to see Christ in others we will experience the joy of serving our Savior. It is our responsibility and joy to nurture Christ's image in each person we encounter.

Paul says "Now you are the body of Christ and each one of you is a part of it."

As a part of the body of Christ what kind of image are you producing? Are you producing an image that leads people to see Christ in your life or is your life and lifestyle proclaiming a different message to the world?

Michigan Promisekeepers event features McCartney

By AL POST
 MCN Staff Writer

Recently retired Colorado University football coach Bill McCartney will be one of the featured speakers at the Michigan Promisekeepers program at the Pontiac Silverdome in April.

It is forecast that 92,000 Michigan Christian men and others from outside the state will gather at the two-day men's conference (April 28-29) at the Silverdome to listen to the featured speakers, join in Christian hymn and praise song sessions and offer prayers for our nation.

McCartney, who previously coached at the University of Michigan, also is one of the founders of the national Promisekeepers group, a Christian men's organization created to challenge men to regain their leadership roles in the family and church and to work for elimination of racism throughout the nation.

Promisekeepers began in 1990 when McCartney and about 70 other men conducted the first Promisekeepers conference in Colorado. The participation has increased dramatically in succeeding years.

In 1994 the Promisekeepers conferences have grown throughout the Western states and Midwest areas of the U.S. and attracted more than a quarter of a million Christian men to massive football stadiums.

This year the Silverdome conference will kick off 13 such conferences across the U.S. with other first time sites listed as Washington D.C. May 26-27 and Atlanta, Ga. on June 30-July 1.

Other speakers will include Rev. E.V. Hill, who spoke at last year's Wayne County area Promisekeepers Wake Up session; Rev. Wellington Boone, Tony Evans, Dr. Bruce Wilkerson, president of "Walk Thru the Bible" ministries; Dr. Joseph M. Stowell III, president of Moody Bible Institute; Luis Palau and Joseph Garlington. A Michigan Promisekeepers spokesperson said reservations for the Silverdome conference will be in the mail soon and urged that participants return the forms with the $55 fee as soon as possible. Last year approximately 30,000 applications for the Hoosierdome conference in Indianapolis were turned down for being too late.

The fee covers entrance into the two-day conference and two meals on Saturday, the spokesperson said.

Prior to the April conference, 10 wake up call meetings will be conducted throughout lower Michigan.

One of those meetings is slated for 7 p.m. Feb. 21 at the Second Ebenezer Baptist Church of Detroit. Further information on that session can be obtained by calling 1-810-647-0044. A free-will offering will be taken at that time.
